REGIS AND THE MAN — Just as Regis helps the man to grow, the man helps Regis to grow. The process of growth from boyhood to manhood is one which entails many long and tedious hours. These include both hours of work and hours of relaxation. The process begins as the new student comes to know the value of knowledge and discovers new ways to attain this knowledge. It is with this realization that the "boy" begins the long road to manhood.

The long road has only begun in the academic atmosphere into which he has ventured. He must be rounded in the social and moral aspects of his life as well. The student needs consolation and guidance to overcome the hardships placed on him in this new way of life. He is motivated to strive for this guidance by cultivating a personal relationship between himself and God.

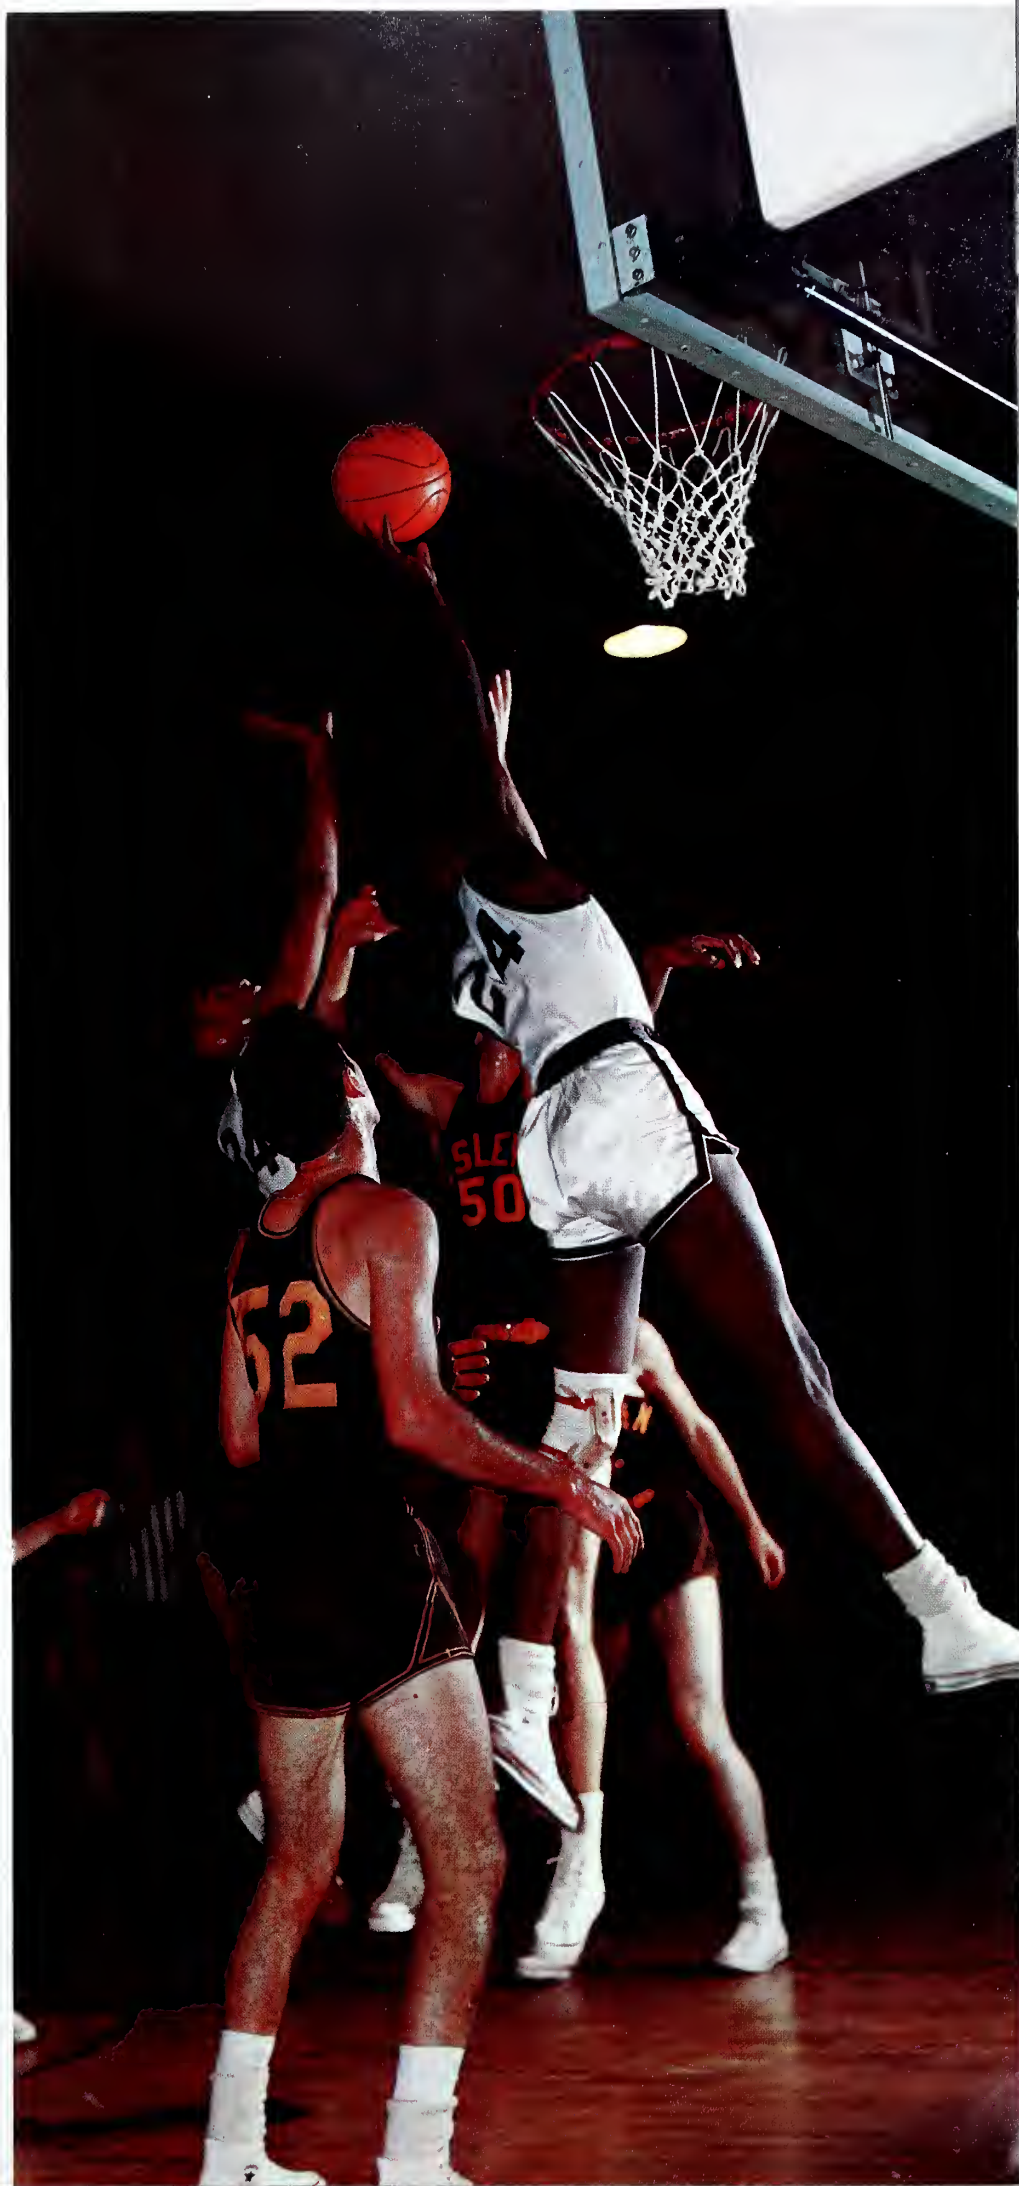

Other facets of the student, his physical development through such activities as swimming, basketball, handball, and football, and his social development through dances, hayrack rides, and informal gatherings are inculcated into his character.

Varsity athletics strengthen the character of both the players and the spectators. The ideals of sportsmanship and fair play are instilled into his developing character.

Long hours of research, long hours of study begin to increase his sense of values. As the student continues through his four years of development, he begins to manifest the ideals which have been placed before him.

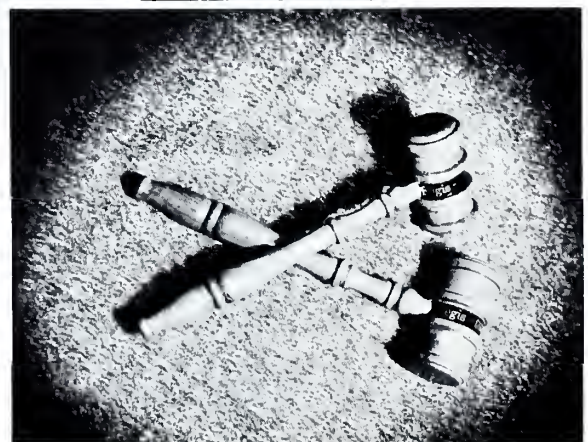

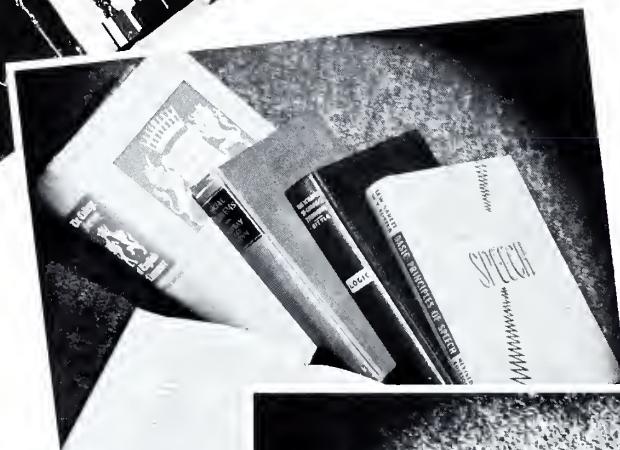

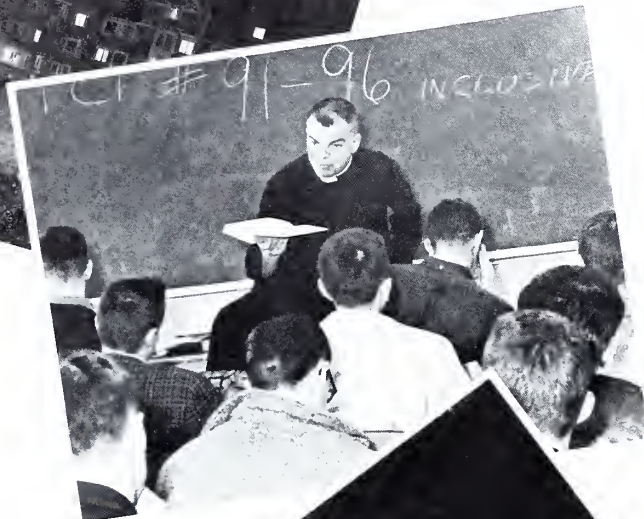

The student's formal training terminates at the time of graduation and he is on his way to becoming a man. The spring of the year gives forth new life and beauty. At the same time, the new man is ready to journey forth in the adventure of his new life. Regis has helped him to grow, and, by the values and spirit he shows in his selected profession, he will help Regis to grow. He is an ever-present factor in the Regis of today and the Regis of the future.

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

Never is Regis College so proud as at a time such as this when we pause to review another graduating class, another academic year and to share with you feelings of satisfaction and expectation.

Those of you who approach graduation are living testimony to all that is good in the ambitions of Regis College. We are proud of you and congratulate you. We are thankful for the opportunity we have had to know and guide you in these important years of your life.

In its aim for leadership in Christian humanistic studies, Regis College has brought you into contact with these aims, ideals and ambitions. We trust our example, instruction, guidance and prayers have been efficacious in helping you realize in yourself the embodiment of all Regis holds true and good.

You have matured intellectually as you gained knowledge in truth, became knowledgeable in your field, resolved a pattern of convictions and principles to mold your character. You have had the opportunity to motivate yourself for life with dedication of purpose according to God's will.

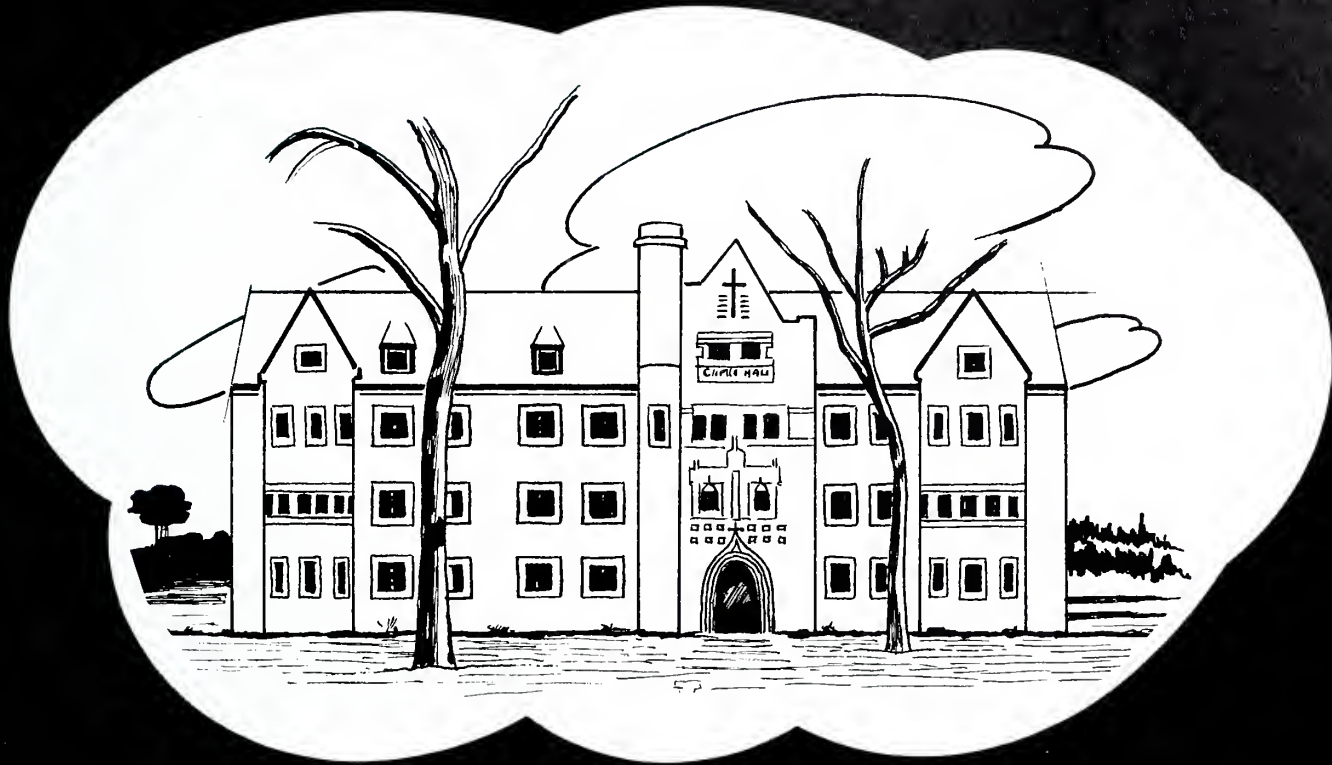

Wise men recognize God and understand themselves; all else they bring into proper perspective as they implement their adult years for their own continuing education to the greater honor and glory of God. It is our hope, our prayer, our expectation that Regis men will be true to their opportunity and signalize themselves with humility before God and their fellow men.

ACADEMICS

ADMINISTRATION

The directing force behind everything at a College is the administration. It is through this group of men that the College has progressed in the past and will continue to grow in the future. They are the driving force behind the policies, traditions, and plans of the College. Without these men, there could be no College.

The students of Regis can be duly proud of their administration. During the past few years, they have guided the school along a path of development which many thought would never be attained. Buildings have been erected over the entire campus, the size and quality of the faculty is endlessly being increased, in general, the College has advanced in every direction.

With recent developments hardly accomplished, the administration is, even now, making great plans for the future of Regis. New buildings have been blue-printed, great strides in academic areas have already begun. The administration of the Regis of today is truly looking to the Regis of the future.

FOUNDERS WEEK

1962 Founders Week, October 1st through 7th, 1962, Commemorating the 85th anniversary of the founding of Regis College, was an opportunity for its faculty and students to re-dedicate themselves to the pursuit of knowledge with the enthusiasm and zeal exhibited by its early faculty and students.

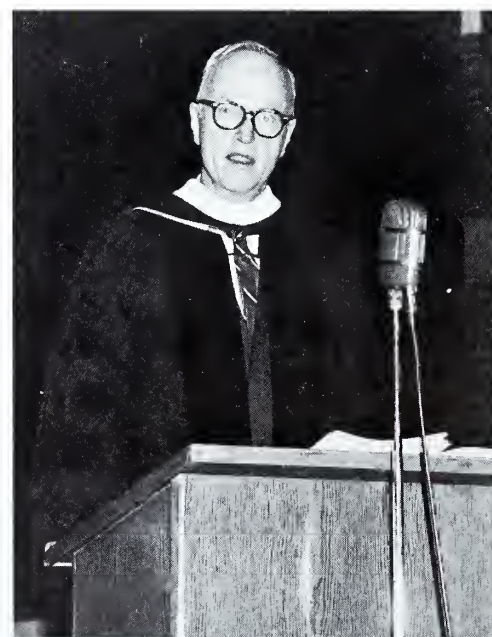

The formal beginning of the 1962-1963 academic year was observed with the traditional Solum Mass of the Holy Spirit held in the Regis Fieldhouse at 5:00 P.M. on October 1st, with the Right Reverend Monsignor Gregory Smith, V.G., P.A., celebrating. The sermon, delivered by the Very Reverend Monsignor George Evans, J.C.D., Vice-Chancellor of the Archdiocese of Denver, outlined the purposes and aims of a Catholic education.

The annual Fall Convocation was held on October 2nd, in the Fieldhouse. Following the academic procession and the Invocation by the Reverend Thomas F. Finucane, S.J., the main speaker, the Reverend Edward L. Maginnis, S.J., Chairman of the Department of Theology, was introduced by Mr. John F. Sweeney, General Chairman of Founders Week. Father Maginnis emphasized in his address the need of an honest re-evaluation of the Catholic educational system in terms of its goals and methods. The Benediction was delivered by the Reverend John J. Gibbons, S.J.

A perfect ending for the Homecoming Week.

The Faculty Convocation, convening afterward in the Fieldhouse Lecture Hall, featured as its speaker the Reverend Thomas L. O'Brien, S.J., Director of the Honors Program at Seattle University.

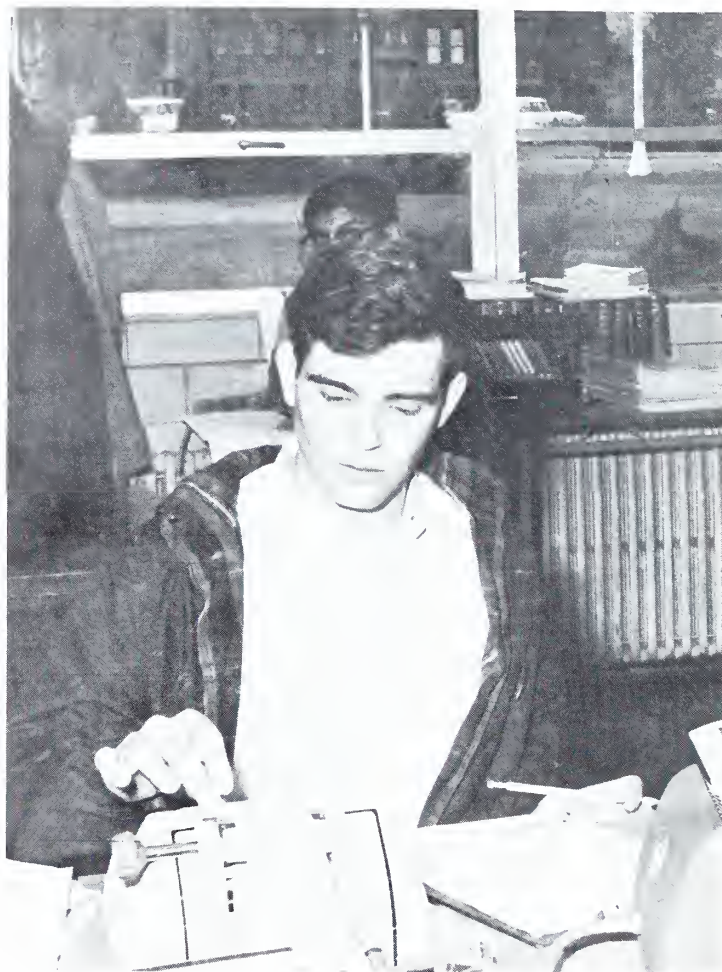

Founders Week also provided an opportunity for the alumni of Regis College to return to the campus to renew contact with their alma mater and their fellow alumni. Homecoming Weekend, under the general chairmanship of Mr. Robert V. Carroll, '39, was the Friday, Saturday, and Sunday of Founders Week. The weekend began with a stag golf tournament and reception. Other events included class reunion parties, an alumni conference, and a memorial Mass for deceased alumni. The weekend was climaxed with a Saturday night dinner-dance at which awards were presented for alumni service.

ACCOUNTING

The aims of the accounting department are to provide the student with enough knowledge so that he is prepared to provide financial information about any economic entity, usually a business enterprise.

In order to do this, the student must be well versed in three basic areas. First of all, it will be necessary that the student be able to assimilate business transactions in a systematic manner. After the transactions have been compiled, the accountant will be expected to sort the various transactions and events into related groups and categories. Finally, in order to be helpful to anyone, the information recorded and classified has to be summarized in the form of a report or statement. In addition to the three primary functions of accounting, namely that of recording, classifying, and summarizing, the present day accountant is also called upon to do many other things. Chief among these, is the analysis and interpretation of the data he has created. The qualified accountant is always concerned with the significance of the figures he has produced. He looks for meaningful relationships between events and financial results; he studies the effect of various alternatives; and he searches for significant trends that may throw some light on what will happen in the future. Therefore, the aims of the accounting department, as stated above, are to provide the student with enough knowledge so that he is prepared to provide financial information about an economic entity, through the skills of recording, classifying, summarizing, and interpreting of financial information that he has acquired in his studies.

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

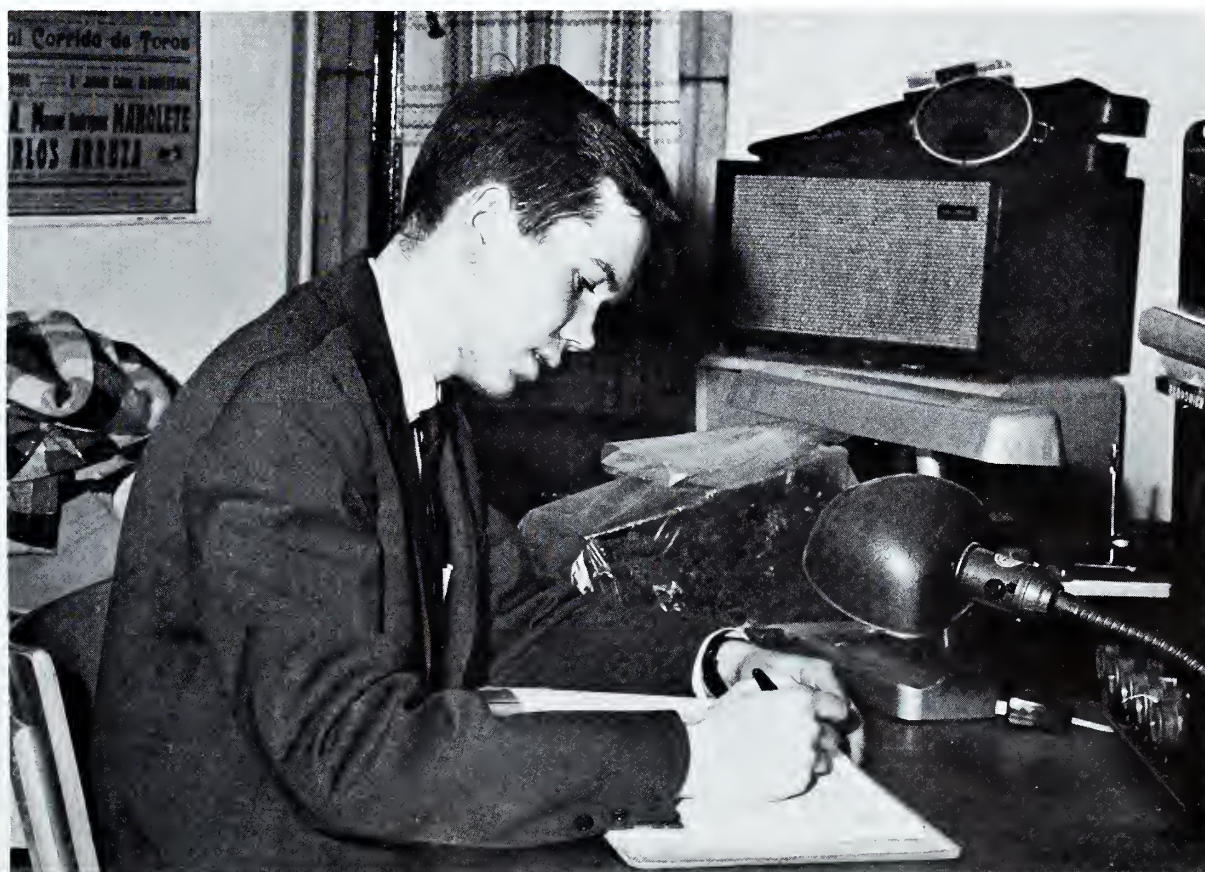

The business world is one of the most important areas of our modern social order. It is, therefore, the responsibility of a Jesuit institution to help prepare men to take a capable, Christian part in this integral facet of American society. The corporate, automated society in which the Regis graduate will find himself adds further emphasis to this responsibility.

An education for a Catholic American businessman should equip him with good study habits, powers of analysis, ability of self-expression, social poise, an historical outlook, and a rational knowledge of Christianity. He must also have a thorough knowledge of the theory and practice of business and the habits of applying their Christian principles in business situations.

To prepare students for such effective service in business and to develop in them the habits that make for continuing growth, the fundamental purposes of the Department of Business Administration are: (1) To develop an appreciation and understanding of the human and material factors that make up the subject matter of business. (2) To give the students the larger knowledge, skill, and resourcefulness which constitute a college training for the better opportunities in business. (3) To guide students in the selection of their business careers, and to aid graduates in the pursuit of their chosen business objectives.

— Rudy Sporcich

BIOLOGY

The objective of the Department of Biology is primarily cultural, commensurate with the concepts and ideals of a liberal arts college. The student is acquainted with a survey of fundamental principles, the scientific method in its application to the dynamic character of biological science. An objective evaluation of the mechanistic and teleological interpretation of biological phenomena is derived from laboratory experience and techniques. Inductive and deductive processes are related to the logic of scientific thinking. Infinite attention to finite detail is stressed in observation and description of the various forms from protozoan to metazoan in the laboratory exercises. Thus, the student, from the study of the finite, gains some insight into the infinite. Attention is focused, in the lectures, on the contribution of biological science to human welfare, and discussion of practical applications to human problems are analyzed and evaluated.

The courses offered in the department are structured to correlate with the allied sciences in the Science Division, including psychology, sociology, and philosophy. The requirements of the American Medical and Dental Colleges have been successfully achieved. This is evidenced by the fact that Regis College has the highest percentage in the State of Colorado of students being admitted in the field of the healing arts, and pursuing these courses with outstanding success.

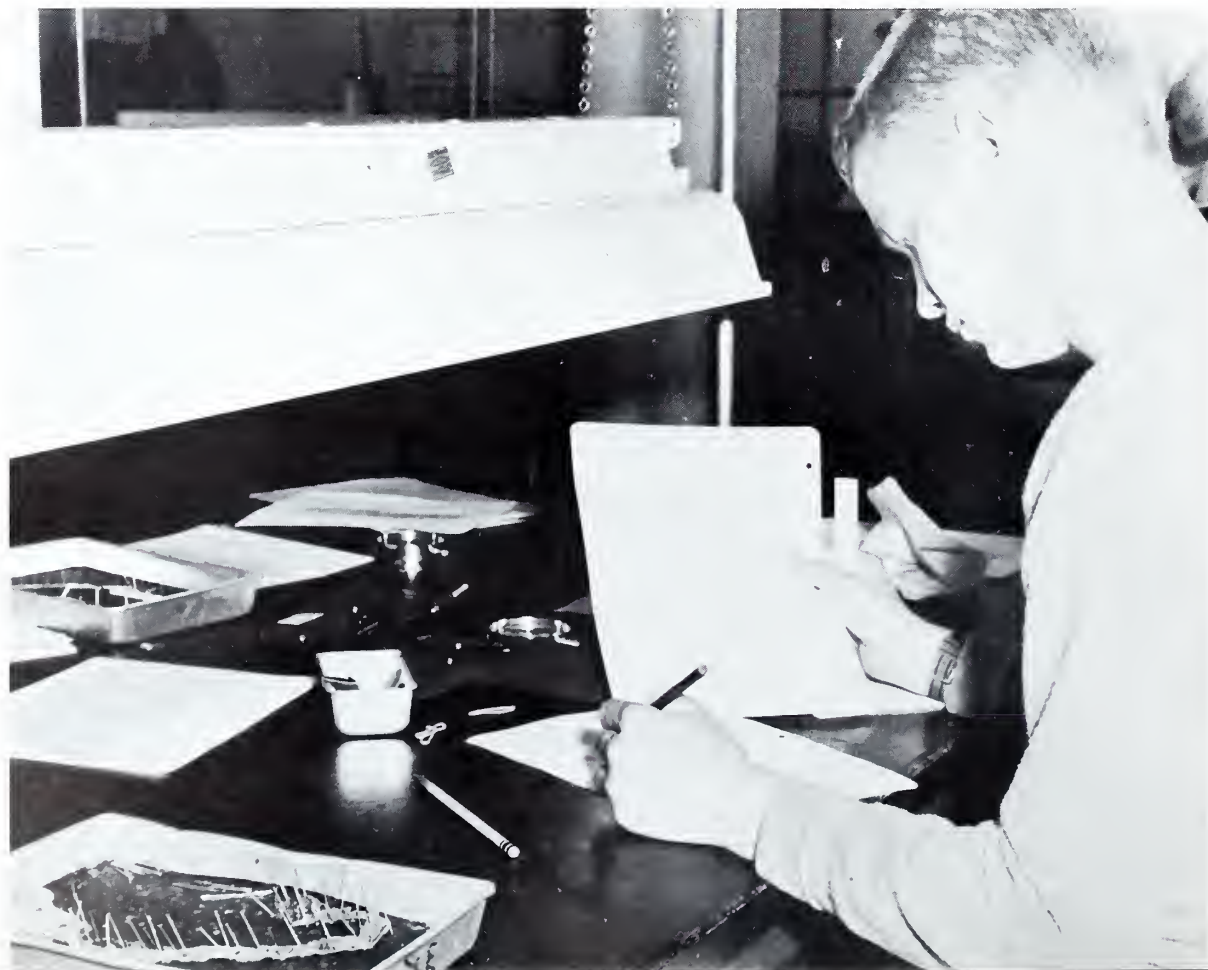

The Biology Club sponsors a series of lectures by eminent scientists in various areas of biological research. These acquaint the student with the vast scope of biological endeavor, and are an incentive for graduate studies.

A freshman biology student draws up one of the many reports required in the lab. These teach the student to observe even tiny details.

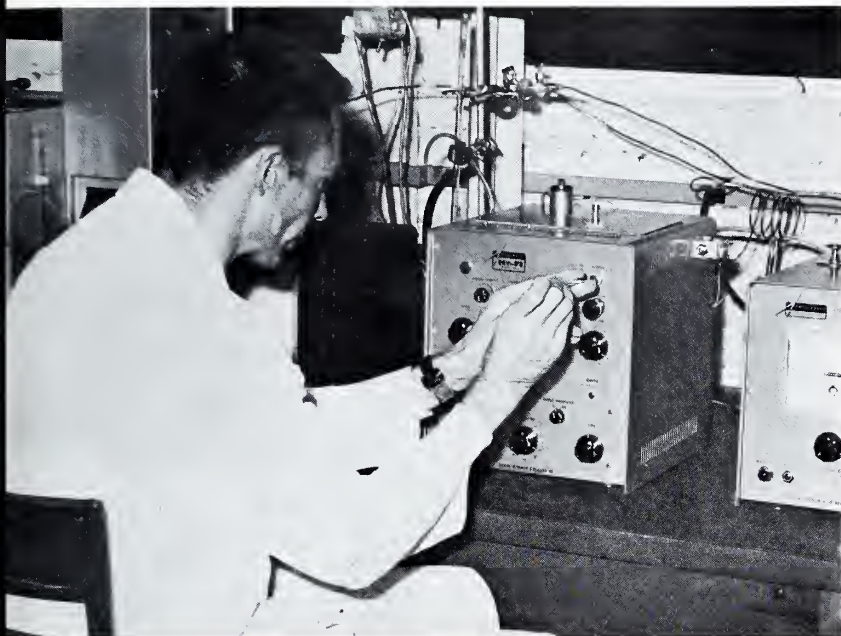

CHEMISTRY

The objectives of the Department of Chemistry are to introduce the student to the principles of modern science and to train him in the processes of thought which have organized these principles into a coherent unit. The program of studies as offered by the department is also aimed at meeting the needs of the following classes of students:

1. For the student who will enter the chemical profession or will continue his training in graduate school, the program provides a broad basic training in theoretical principles of the fundamental branches traditional to this science amplified by a selected group of advanced courses.
2. For the student preparing for the medical or related professions it offers a thorough training in those fundamental branches of Chemistry which are so basic to these professions.
3. The student with a primary interest in the humanities or social sciences will find Chemistry to be a scientific study of general educational value. It will provide him with a scientific approach to the solution of problems, an experience with laboratory methods of investigation, and will present to him some of the major intellectual achievements of Chemistry. It will also help him to achieve sufficient scientific knowledge to exercise a critical judgement in evaluating the problems that occur in the material world in which we live.

CLASSICAL LANGUAGES

Ideally the purpose of higher education is to develop and perfect the natural powers of the intellect; specifically, to enable a man to reason clearly and accurately after viewing various aspects of a proposition. An understanding of the written and spoken word is the reward of such a trained reasoning process.

The memory, as all human faculties, needs constant exercise on worthy subjects; the imagination, due to the sameness of daily living, requires external stimulation for its perfection.

The purpose of the Classical Department is to make the reasoning power accurate and comprehensive, to illumine the imagination by the scenes of an era so far removed from the 20th century and yet so much a part of each of us. Mythology, the province of Classical Latin and Greek, provides us themes intrinsically fascinating, and the inspiration of all great literature from the fall of Rome to our own day.

The acquisition of the almost unlimited vocabulary of the Classical Languages is the foundation for an accurate and informed knowledge and use of English, and of all Romance Languages. We acquire from Greek and Latin the genuine meaning and value of words, their order and connection, and a grasp of grammar nowhere else to be acquired, with such depth and precision, as in laboring on the complex languages of Latin and Greek.

Education of the mind, mental culture, dexterity of thought, the correcting and maturing of ideas, the broad view of the different varieties of meaning in language are the immediate rewards of the engaging and enjoyable study of Greek and Latin.

Inherent in the Classical Languages are a beauty of sound and rhythm to be found in no other Literature. The perfection of style both grammatical and rhetorical is the best way to prepare for the skillful and finished expression of ideas in one's own native tongue, and surely a means to great writing, for by studying the masters we treat diction, oral and written, as an art.

The experience of studying the Classical authors makes clear why such ancient works, still so vivacious and modern, are correctly called 'Classics', for we read them with pleasure, our minds are refreshed, purified, and ennobled by the perfect expression of great minds whose works remain dear to us and always inspiring after the lapse of 2000 years . . .

Rev. Matthew Lynch, S.J. points out some of the similarities between Greek and Latin.

ECONOMICS

The Department of Economics seeks to give the student an understanding of the factors which influence economic decision-making, so that the student may think clearly and independently about the economic problems which he may face in later life, both as an individual, and as a member of society.

This knowledge of economics is essential for a proper understanding and appreciation of our present society. Our form of free-enterprise capitalism reveals as much a part of the American way of life as is the freedom of voicing our opinion. Not everyone, unfortunately, realizes the importance of understanding our economic system. Only recently it was stated by a well-known financial analyst that: "the American economy is the eighth wonder of the world; the ninth wonder is the economic ignorance of the American public."

The courses offered at Regis are designed to acquaint the student with the factors most relevant to decision making in the business firms and industry. Also, courses are offered which show the ways in which the various national economies influence each other in the international economy.

The efforts of both America and Russia to bring the uncommitted and underdeveloped nations within their respective spheres of influence and the outcome of the cold war will be determined in large part by economic forces and issues.

EDUCATION-PSYCHOLOGY

One of the aims of Regis College from its founding has been to educate men, potentially strong in leadership qualities, in the Jesuit liberal arts tradition. Hopefully, these men, in their turn, would (and will) influence many other men in the course of their post college work.

The increasing emphasis which has been placed on education in recent years motivated Regis College to broaden the scope of its offerings for its students and to institute a program of teacher education in 1956. Since that time, the program has developed to such a point that it is now a permanent program within the college, with more than one hundred students currently enrolled in the program.

The teacher education program is being re-evaluated this year, along with the rest of the curriculum, to determine the effective ways to strengthen further the course offerings and the pre-teaching experience.

It is quite likely that the revised program will include an honors section, more independent work for all students in the program, increased laboratory experience, and more off-campus contact with educators in the metropolitan area school systems.

The final form of the teacher education program cannot be specified at this time, but the work on the revision is well under way and preliminary discussions regarding the increased off-campus experiences have already been initiated.

In the field of psychology the student is offered a knowledge of human behavior in both a theoretical and a practical form. The necessary principles are given him in the classroom, and these are practically demonstrated in off-campus activities.

ENGLISH

Since the Regis College English Department has the specific mission of training not children but young adults for humanistic leadership and moral maturity in the field of literature, it chooses for study those works which 1) best exemplify our traditional Christian wisdom and 2) give valid insight into the problems which the student faces the moment he leaves the classroom.

Quite obviously, then, the most important book for Regis students is the Bible, which has influenced almost every writer in our language, and offers the only valid norms for making ultimate judgements about life and literature.

The basic author at Regis is Shakespeare. The greatest writer in our language, he offers consummate literary expression of the basic Judaeo-Christian vision of life. A thorough study of Sonnet 116 shows the student the true nature of charity, love, agape; Sonnet 129, by contrast, demonstrates the horrors of self-gratification, passion, lust. In this light, Regis students study Shakespeare's plays to see the operation or non-operation of love, or charity.

The Regis student thus armed is totally prepared to attain the specific goals of the Regis College English Department, which are: a) to enlarge the student's cultural development through intelligent and personal experience of some of the valuable literature of our language: b) to guide the student to a more effective expression of his thought and feeling.

HISTORY

As Regis looks ahead she cannot be unmindful of the world in which she strives to attain her goals, nor can she forget the heroic efforts of the men of many centuries who struggled to lay the foundations on which she builds. A good builder must be sure of the foundation.

Students of Regis are prepared to play a part in the drama of civilization. To play that part well they must know the nature of man, his aspirations, and his accomplishments. They must understand man's ambitions and his attempts to achieve those ambitions. Nor can they ignore the fact that there have been failures, just as there have been successes. History can teach the student that, in spite of failure, man has been able to create, not a masterpiece perhaps, but an enduring monument that is the reflection of his God-given genius.

Just as a builder must take into account the hard facts of stresses and strains, so the student of history must endeavor to know man as he is, in his weakness and his strength. He will learn to appreciate that men are not all good nor all bad; that some have high aspirations and others aims that are not worthy of children of God. This knowledge will develop in him a sense of balance, a willingness to accept the truth, no matter how disagreeable, and a sense of responsibility to his own and future generations. Standing on a solid foundation he will be able to withstand the capricious winds that swirl around him; firm in the knowledge of the wisdom of the words of St. Thomas More, "It is not possible for all things to be well, unless all men are good, which, I think, will not be yet these many years."

Henry Steele Commager, a well-known historian, holds a discussion on the Civil War.

During pre-registration, Father Stansell and history students discuss various courses offered.

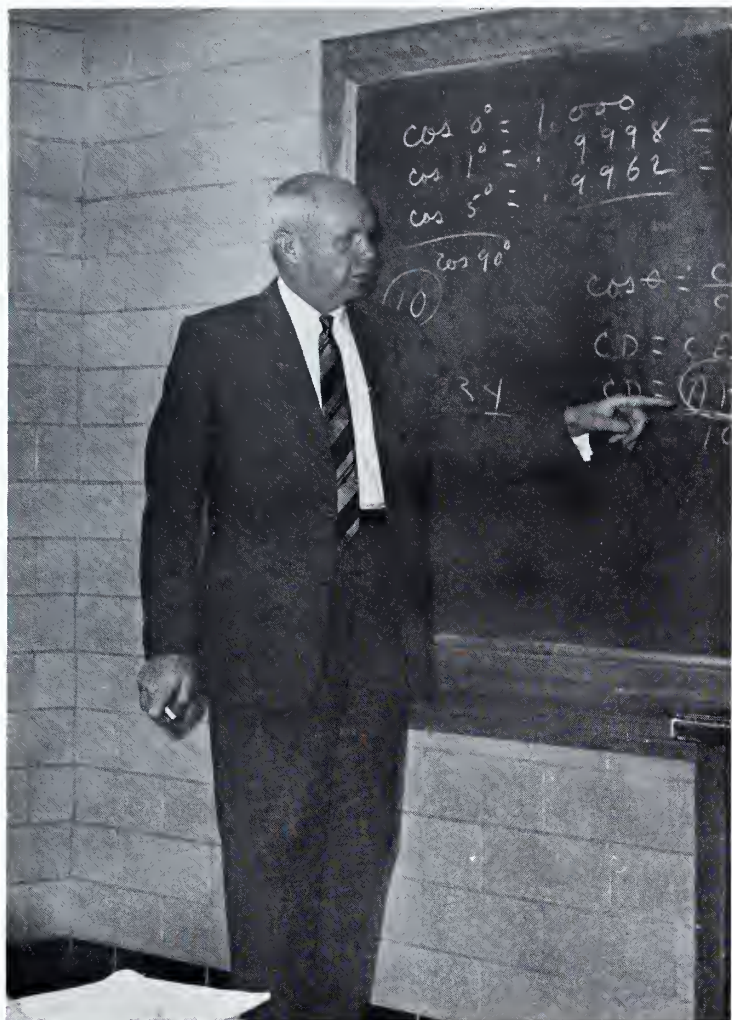

MATHEMATICS

In common with all departments at Regis, the mathematics department is able to offer individual attention to the student because of the limited class size. This commodity — individual attention — is particularly useful to a “service” department, which tries to give some degree of mathematical training to students in business, education, economics, the humanities, social sciences, and natural sciences.

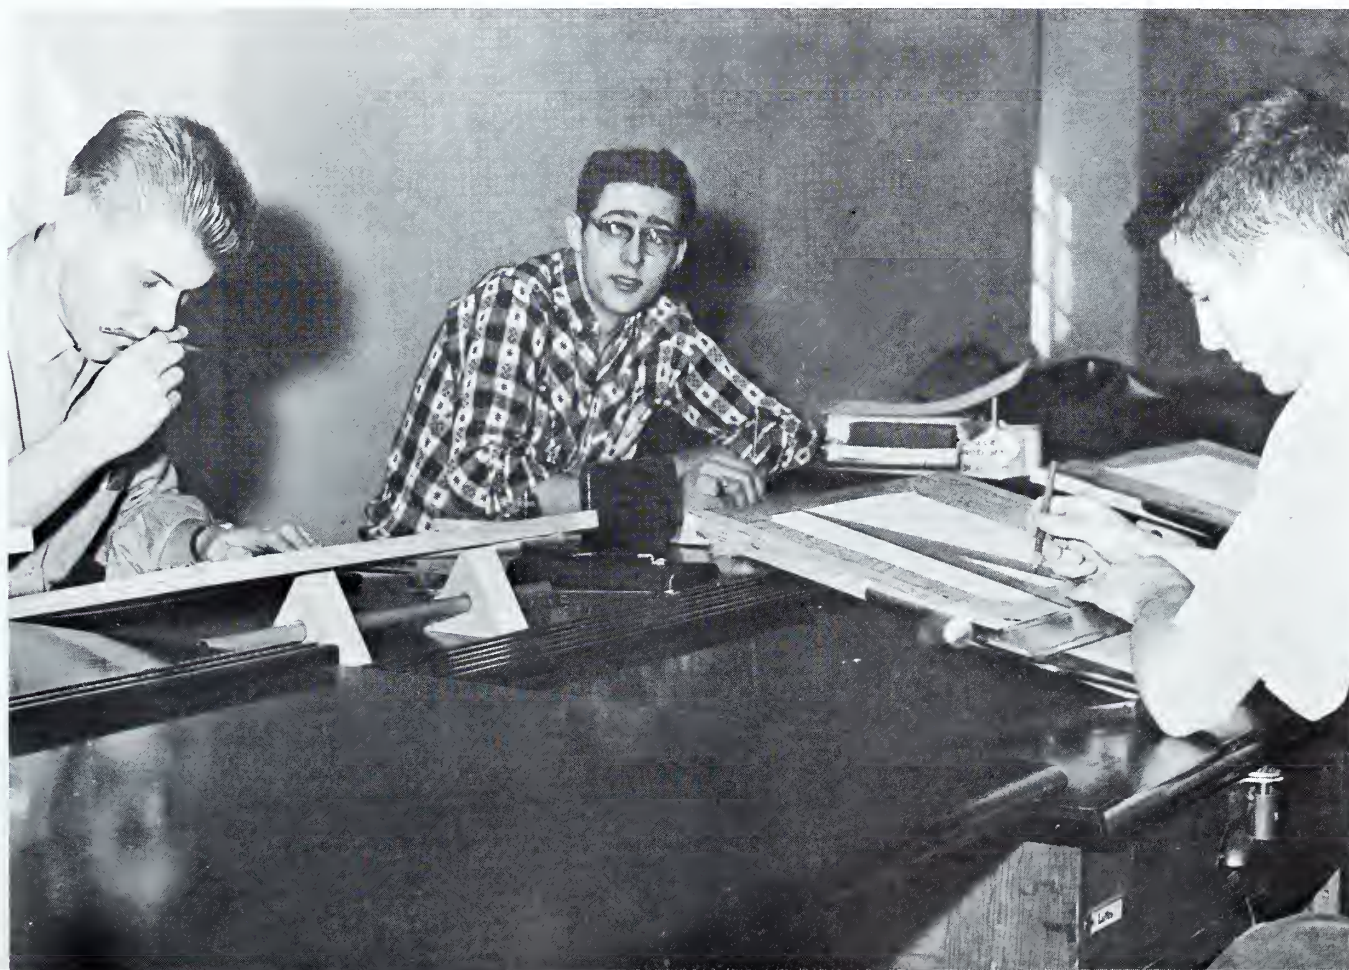

A specific function of any mathematics department is the specialized training of the mathematics major. At Regis it is possible to conduct small seminars, like courses for juniors and seniors, and to give an idea of the nature of graduate work in mathematics.

— Hugh M. Edgar

MODERN LANGUAGES

In accordance with the recent request made by the federal government to American institutions of higher learning for emphasis of modern languages, startling changes in the Regis College Modern Languages Department have taken place. This has resulted in a complete revision of the curriculum. Russian courses have been added to the present list of French, German and Spanish. Future expansion of the department to include Italian, Portuguese and some African languages is under study at the present. For the first time in many years, advanced courses are now being offered at Regis.

The department feels that a maximum of twenty students per section is essential for beginning language courses; accordingly, additional professors have been hired. The focal point for the activities of the department is the new electronic language laboratory, now in its second year of operation.

The increase in the number of Regis men who are planning graduate studies has also called for changes in the objectives of the department. These objectives now read as follows:

1. A reading knowledge sufficient to fulfill graduate school requirements.
2. Accuracy of expression, written and oral, through a functional mastery of grammar and through intensive drill in the language laboratory.
3. A knowledge and appreciation of the cultural background of the language.
4. Reasonable facility in the language.

Mr. Bechtolt keeps a close watch as the students display deep concentration during an exam.

As the student listens to the tape he is able to record his answers and later listen to them. This greatly facilitates the acquiring of correct pronunciation.

MUSIC

The Music Department offers courses for the further understanding and appreciation of the musical traditions of the world. Courses include study in such phases of music as musical form (Symphony, Concerto, and Chamber Music) and musical performance. Concerts are presented on campus to provide an opportunity for the students to become more familiar with the musical arts.

The Regis College Glee Club was recently organized to help fill a recognized need for the continuation and development of the religious, recreational, educational, and social values achieved through music.

Our country is now becoming recognized as the leader of the world in the arts as well as the scientific, economic and political fields. Music is flourishing with the other arts as it never has in the history of the world. There are more Symphony Orchestras in the United States than all other countries combined. More people are participating in and more money is spent on music than ever before.

Our students will continue to need more and more contact with music, if it be in performance, formal study of music or more participation in listening in order to keep abreast of the times and be recognized as an active person in their community as well as in their specialized fields.

PHILOSOPHY

The Department of Philosophy strives to give the student a comprehensive grasp of reality and a scientific explanation of that reality in terms of its ultimate causes. To achieve that goal the student is required to take a series of courses in which he studies being, man, and God according to the principles laid down by St. Thomas Aquinas. Since, however, the student must live in a world whose norms for conduct and whose philosophical principles are drawn from a wide variety of sources, he must also become familiar with the history of philosophical thought and especially with those systems of philosophy which are exercising the greatest influence in our present society. The department aims to produce the man who is clearly aware of his intellectual heritage and who is able to judge clearly and competently the new insights as well as the weaknesses of modern thinking. To have achieved this is to possess the sound rational basis for a true Christian wisdom.

— Harry R. Klocker, S.J.

The activities of the physical education class advance the student's reflexes and speed in order to fully develop him.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

The objectives of the Department of Physical Education are the promotion and development of physical fitness during college life, recreational and leisure time activities, safety skills, especially in swimming, a desirable attitude toward health and wholesome recreation, and trained leadership. Each season of the year provides opportunity for students to pursue physical fitness in various ways. In the fall, intramural football highlights the list of activities. Intramural tournaments in golf and tennis are also held at this time. During the winter months, intramural basketball is in the spotlight providing much enjoyment for the students. Spring brings on baseball activities in addition to soccer. Everyday throughout the school year the fieldhouse is open to the students providing handball, swimming, weightlifting, table tennis, basketball, and badminton.

All of these activities, presented by the Physical Education Department, provide a chance for the student to learn skills and fundamentals which will lead to their adopting sports as leisure time activities and carry over into later life.

The credit for the sound physical education program and intramural sports activities which exist at Regis can be found in the close cooperation of the students and the faculty. The faculty is constantly endeavoring to acquire new experiences and pedagogical approaches in both intercollegiate activity and intramurals. It is only through the cooperation of the students that this can be achieved.

— Joe B. Hall

PHYSICS

The Physics Department at Regis College is offering a curriculum designed to best prepare the student for post graduate work in physics and other sciences. The department expects in the near future to offer a complete concentration major. Up to the present we have recommended that students who are preparing for post graduate work in physics take a major in applied mathematics while at Regis, with a strong minor in physics. All such fundamental courses will be required of the student sooner or later anyhow.

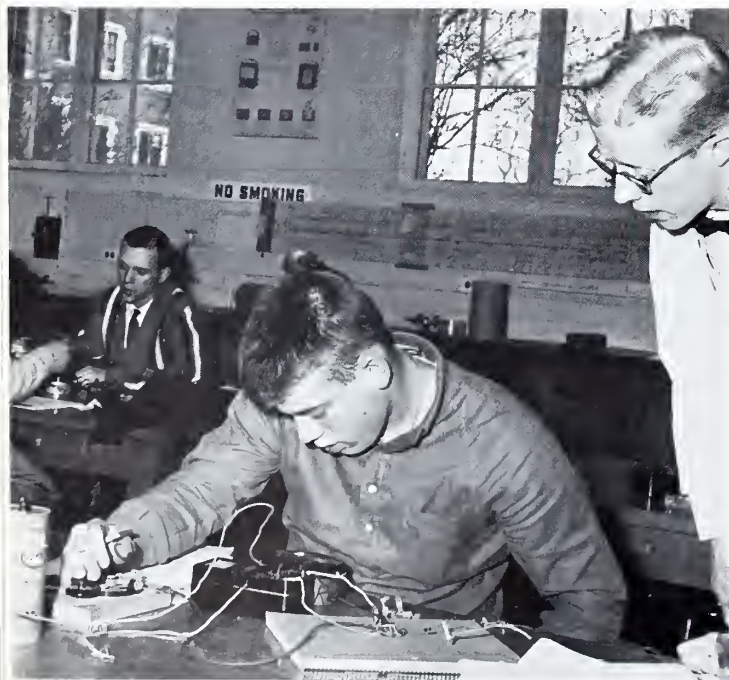

The physics department also offers enough physics courses to accommodate engineering students who wish the 3-2 program or who wish to take their first two years of engineering at Regis, then transfer to an engineering school. The courses are offered in a manner to make them most acceptable to professional schools. Advanced laboratory work is offered in optics, atomic physics, electrical measurements, and electronics.

SOCIOLOGY

Sociology, the science which deals with man in society, plays a leading role in our understanding of the world as we see it today. The purpose of the Department of Sociology is to provide the instruction for the analysis and comprehension of society and its problems. It studies social relationships not only as they are but as they should be in the light of man's nature. Sociology, being a science, must concern itself not only with the discovery of present problems, but also the causes, effects, and solutions to these problems. It bears within itself its own liberal humanistic justification in as much as it studies man as a social being. The human being is viewed in the area in which he dwells, as a part of the institutions which he helps to comprise. Sociology also has a practical societal value in that it gives us a clearer comprehension of human relationships and the forces at work in the social process. It thus enables us to direct our efforts more effectively for the improvement of our social order. Sociology has certain applications in the fields of social service, crime prevention, law, counseling, personnel work, and public administration. Problems in the areas of race, politics, religion, industries, and those of other natures cause the need for these applications. With this in mind, the Sociology Department does not attempt to produce the expert in any one field of Sociology, but rather, the liberally educated man who can examine these problems in their entirety.

SPEECH

The courses offered by the Speech Department of the college are designed to develop the student's understanding and cultural appreciation of the Speech and Theatre Arts. The objective of the program is to provide a balance between study of the theories and principles of the communication arts and practical experience through classroom participation in the extra-curricular programs of Forensics and Theatre.

This year has marked the beginning of a new theatre program for Regis. The department, in conjunction with the college playhouse, has presented four plays: Murder in the Cathedral by T. S. Eliot, The Enchanted by Jean Giraudoux, The Glass Menagerie by Tennessee Williams, and Don Juan In Hell by George Bernard Shaw. These major productions together with an experimental theatre series of student directed plays have marked Regis' entrance into the fine art of theatre.

Regis Forensic activities took on a new face also during the past year. The first annual Regis College Forensics Tournament was held on the campus in October and promises great things for Regis' future. Regis is represented in state and national forensic tournaments throughout the year by the Regis Debate and Oratorical Society which is closely connected with the department. These activities together with on-campus debates and the annual oratory contest make forensics an active program on the campus.

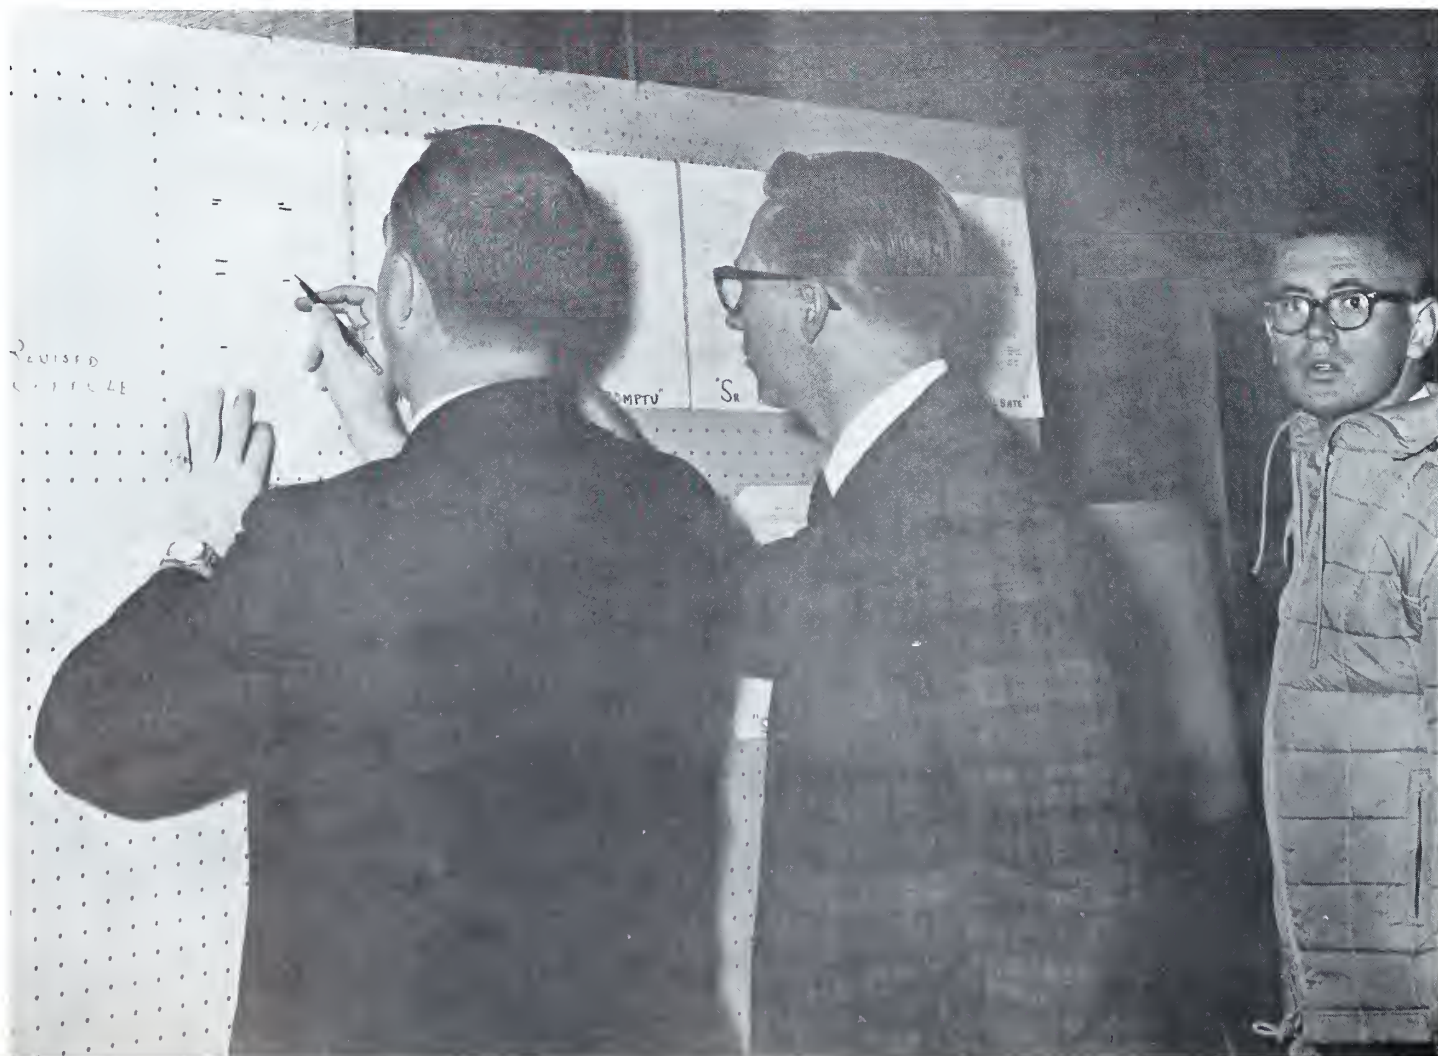

The course offerings in Speech and Theatre, and the extra-curricular offerings combine to give Regis a varied Speech Program.

— Reginald F. Bain

Mr. Bain announces the award winners for the first annual Regis College Forensics tournament.

Several of the debaters check for their name on the schedule during the tournament.

Rev. Clifford Howell, S.J., liturgical expert from Rugby, England, answers a question posed by an interested student.

The program of theology courses at Regis attempts to implement a purpose which is as old, as refined, and as discussed as the Church's interest in liberal education. That purpose can be simply and minimally stated: to enable the Catholic student, submitted to liberal discipline, to exercise himself in theological thinking so as to maintain his intellectual and cultural development in matters religious on a level with his development in other areas of humane interest.

Such a program, controlled by such a purpose, inevitably encounters many challenges. Among them are: the vastness of the scope of theological inquiry, as against the limitations imposed by an already crowded curriculum; the complexity and subtlety of theological reasoning, as against the growing but limited intellectual and emotional maturity of the college student; and related to this, the totally liberal character of theology, viewed as an academic discipline, as against the understandable but agonizing prejudices bred in the student by relentlessly utilitarian motivations in his education and by the oft-voiced expectation that college theology will prove to be but a slightly advanced version of the catechetical and doctrinal instruction he received at an earlier age.

Hopefully, however, our theology program generates a few challenges of its own, such as these: that the discipline of "theologizing" may make a unique contribution to his complete liberal education; that the difficulty of theologizing may elicit from the student a more mature and appreciative love for the glories of his religious heritage; and that a new way of thinking about that religious heritage may engender in the student some realistically Catholic judgments about his milieu and furnish him with the basis for a more integrally Catholic life.

— Edward L. Maginnis, S.J.

Rev. Richard Smith, S.J., visiting lecturer from St. Mary's College, Kansas, explains a theological problem to two puzzled students.

—Any growth which is accomplished, demands a beginning. It must have a primary basis that will direct man to achieve his pursuits. Here lies a willing hand . . . a hand that will guide him, steady him, and comfort him through the trials and errors of his intellectual endeavors.

From the very definition of humanities, the idea of the liberal education of the man, and the mental cultivation of the student in areas of classical language and literature becomes apparent. The future of Regis entails many progressions, but its basic claim of being a liberal arts school will remain the objective of the college throughout its history.

The Humanities Department endeavors to develop in each and every Regis student an awareness of the contributions in English and American literature and culture. The promotion of the modern languages in the college has raised them to a point of requirement in many areas of study. Finally, the student can further discipline his mind through the study of ancient culture in Latin and Greek, and advance himself in the art of public speaking through the effectiveness of the Speech Department.

NATURAL SCIENCE AND MATHEMATICS

Doctor! Scientist! Mathematician! Whatever the field may be, the Division of Natural Science and Mathematics prepares the student to solve the problems of the ever-changing world of today and to better the lot of mankind by unlocking the vast treasures of the almost unknown universe around us.

Students in this Division, for the most part, are preparing for careers in the professions. In accord with this idea, the Departments of Chemistry, Biology, Physics, and Mathematics strive to give the undergraduate the foundation necessary to enter and complete graduate school.

The student is taught what is termed the "scientific method." That is, to observe, to form hypotheses, and then to verify these by experimentation. For it is in this method that the student will spend the rest of his life. By the application of these principles, he will become a success or a failure.

The Division of Social Sciences includes the Departments of History, Sociology, Psychology, and Education. Mindful of the fact that history is a discipline whose object is the ascertaining of the truth concerning past human events, the faculty in this social science at Regis College has for its end the inculcation of truth. Neither prejudice nor partisanship must obscure this view.

The Department of Sociology attempts to give the student a knowledge of the structure and function of social relations, customs, institutions, and the changes which these undergo. This department prepares the student for work in the various fields of human relations.

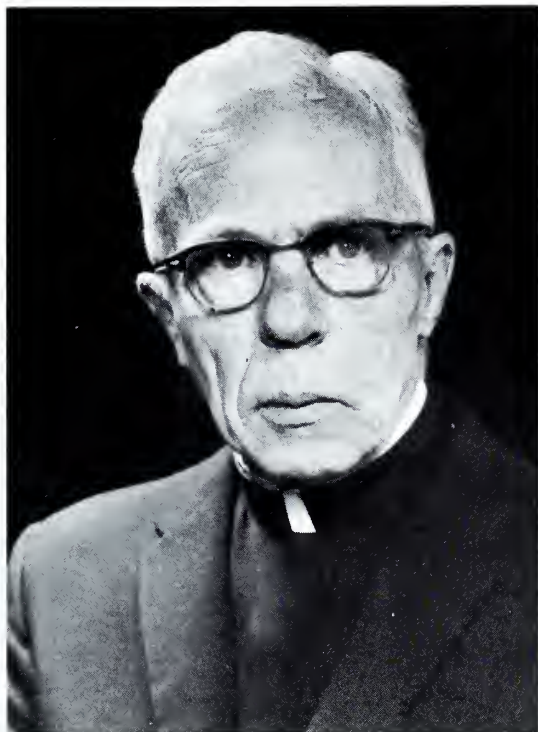

Rev. Harold L. Stansell, S.J.
A.B., M.A., Ph.D.
Chairman of the Department of History
Associate Professor of History

The Department of Psychology attempts to provide the student with an exact knowledge of human behavior. Treating of every phase of human behavior that is capable of careful study, it arms the student with accurate knowledge of the human personality. It offers a research-based grasp of the dynamics of human behavior and fosters a respect for the uniqueness of the human person.

The Department of Education aims at developing men of character and intelligence who by their maturity and competence will command respect both as well educated persons and as members of the teaching profession. It prepares the teacher for the critical job of forming our young people.

COMMERCE AND FINANCE

The Division of Commerce and Finance, through its three departments, Business Administration, Economics, and Accounting, prepares the Regis student not only to make a living, but also to live an integrated Christian life. After building on the Regis liberal arts foundation, the student is exposed to the more specialized areas in his major field. However, the liberal arts theme will carry through all of his Commerce and Finance courses, because they are designed to give him a broad basic knowledge of commercial disciplines rather than educating him for a specific trade.

Assistant Professor of Theology

The Division of Philosophy and Theology is composed of the two departments of Philosophy and Theology.

Theology is rooted in history, but it does not live in the past. It is concerned with the present and looks to the future. Its central point is a startling, living reality, more dumbfounding than all the mysteries and terrors of outer space, the Man who conquered death almost two thousand years ago and lives today. In this Man are rooted all the truths which are found in the universe. Reaction to this Man should be the basis of every man's life. It is the goal of the department that this be realized.

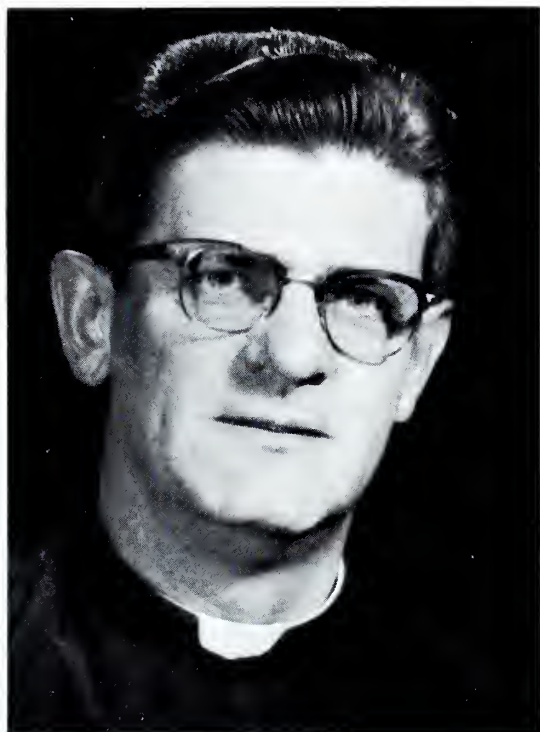

Most Rev. Bernard J. Sullivan, S.J.
A.B., M.A., LL.D., D.D.
Professor Emeritus of Theology

The Department of Philosophy endeavors to impart principles of knowledge whereby the student may begin the process of achieving the habit of philosophy.

Philosophy has all beings for its domain, and studies them from the aspect of reality. On both accounts it is the crowning achievement of natural knowledge, enabling man to synthesize and order all his other knowledge. It is the science which enables us to delve into the inner structure of man and to be able to prove, from the idea of causality, the existence of God.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

The Department of Physical Education, through its rounded curriculum of athletic endeavors, provides that often neglected facet of education, the education of the body. As the mind must be trained to achieve truth, so must the body be developed to make of the student a wholly educated man. Also, for those interested in obtaining a teaching minor in physical education, a variety of courses in the theory of physical education, health education, and skill techniques are offered.

SAINT JOHN FRANCIS REGIS, S. J.

Regis College is named after St. John Francis Regis, S.J. John Francis Regis was a French Jesuit priest who ministered to the mountain folk of France in the role of social apostle and crusader. He was canonized in 1737 by Pope Clement XII. In canonizing St. Regis, the Church officially stated that his holiness was well-nigh inimitable by all those who feel the same compassion for the multitude, and who wish in some little way and according to their own abilities, to bring succor to the woes of humanity.

Thus the "College of the high mountains" adopted the name Regis — "The apostle of the high mountains" — for its own and proposes him as a model to all the young men who study here.

It is in this tradition that the faculty of Regis College strives to inculcate in the student the ideals of a true Catholic gentleman. Whether the student's major be in the humanities, the sciences, or in business, he is impressed with these ideals as goals to be striven for in this life, as a preparation for the life to come.

It is the earnest desire of the faculty members that these ideals are not only present in the college now, but that they will become more and more evident in the future. Just as the school continues to grow in size, so it also continues to grow in its ideals and attainments.

—Eventually, in the process of developing, some men exhibit qualities superior in physical and intellectual growth, and are rewarded for displaying that which Regis desires all to attain.

AWARDS

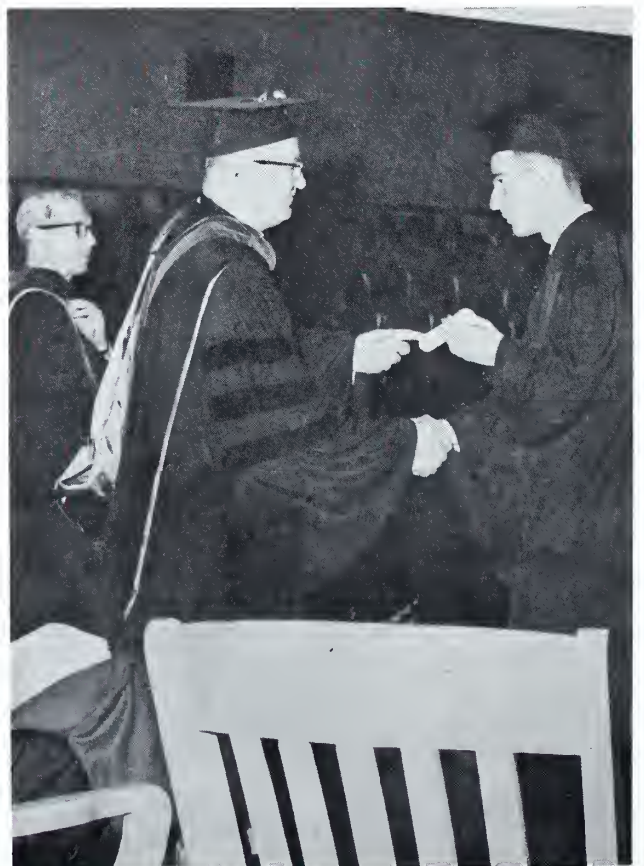

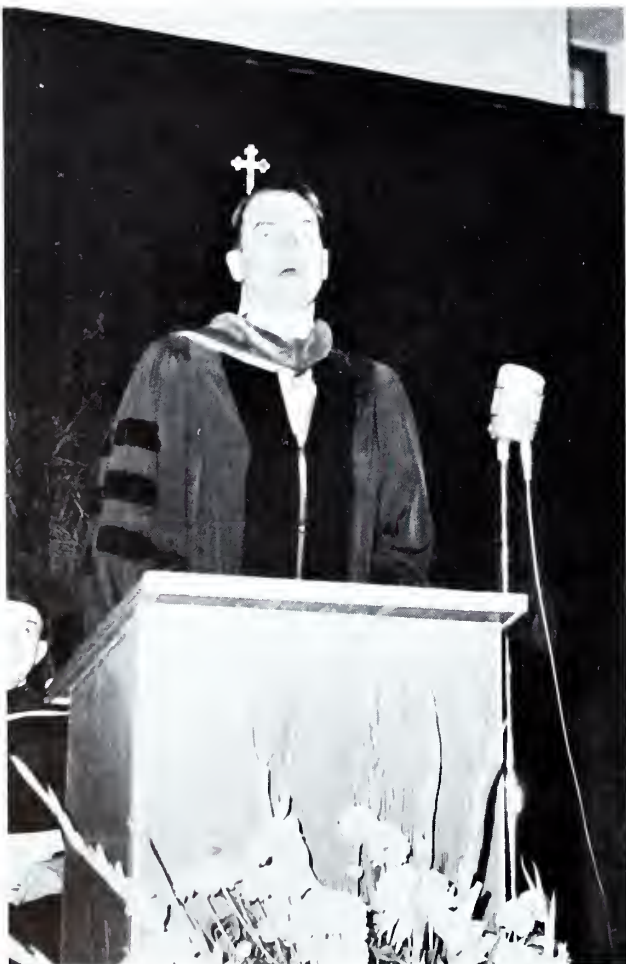

SPRING HONORS CONVOCATION

The 1963 Honors Convocation was the official opening of Regis Parent's Weekend. Parents of the students came from far and near to see academic honors bestowed on those students who were deserving of them. The Convocation, attended by all the students and faculty members, was presided over by the Reverend Harry E. Hoewischer, S.J., Dean of the College. After the invocation by Reverend Edward H. Wintergalen, S.J., Father Hoewischer gave a short address in which he outlined the future objectives of Regis in the academic area. The main speaker of the morning, Dr. Louis T. Benezet, was then introduced. Dr. Benezet is the President of Colorado College, a liberal arts college in Colorado Springs, Colorado. He divided the honors which Regis was giving into three groups and congratulated Regis in honoring these students in such a manner. He said that he believed that of all the awards being given, Dean's List, Academic Honors, and Service Awards, the "awards of life," or service awards, were the most important and necessary, and, in addition, the hardest to judge. Following Dr. Benezet's speech, the Very Reverend Richard F. Ryan, S.J., President of Regis College, presented the special academic awards to the deserving winners.

The students and faculty pay close attention to the main speaker of the morning, Dr. Louis T. Benezet, President of Colorado College.

Dr. Louis T. Benezet describes to those attending the Convocation the need to honor the outstanding student.

In addition to these awards, she was given an award for excellence in advanced courses in French and Spanish at the Spring Honor's Convocation. She is a member of the Aquinas Academy and of the Literary Club.

Stephen Leonard has performed many extra-curricular activities in addition to his excellent work in the academic area. He has been on the Dean's List since he was a freshman and is well noted for his strivings in the area of forensics. He has served as President of the Debate Club during the past year and has been appointed as editor of the Brown and Gold Review for the coming year.

Awards were won this year at the State Oratorical Contest in Greeley, Denver University Rocky Mountain Speech Conference, and the Jesuit Debate Tournament in Chicago. The Debate Club also won several awards at the first annual Regis Debate Tournament.

WHO'S WHO COLLEGES AND

Recognition by WHO'S WHO AMONG STUDENTS IN AMERICAN COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES means that the student was first officially recommended from the university or college he attends and then accepted by the organization. Nominating committees consider the student's scholarship, his leadership and co-operation in educational and extra-curricular activities, his general citizenship, and his promise for future usefulness.

Each student who becomes a member receives a certificate of recognition awarded by the organization and presented at the school, and recognition in the annual publication for the year during which he was selected in the form of a writeup of his college and personal record and a listing in the index under the college from which he was nominated.

The award is presented for four purposes:

1963 HONORS BANQUET

Mr. Anthony F. Zarlengo addresses those in attendance at the Honor's Banquet.

March 3, 1963, marked the end of a successful Parent's Weekend. The festivities closed quite appropriately with the Fifth Annual Honor's Banquet. The Honor's Banquet gives the students of Regis a chance to gather together to honor their peers for excellence and achievement in extra-curricular activities. Immediately following the dinner, the crowd, which filled the student Center, was treated to the sounds of the Regis Glee Club. Following the entertainment, all of the awards of the evening, except the Man of the Year Awards, were presented to the appropriate students. The main address of the evening was then delivered by Mr. Anthony F. Zarlengo. Mr. Zarlengo reminisced back to when he was a student at Regis and then progressed to what he felt a student should attain from a Jesuit education. Following the main address, eleven Men of the Year Awards were presented to the outstanding seniors as a small token of appreciation for the work they have done for Regis. With the giving of these awards, a most successful weekend was brought to a close and the students again prepared to go back to classes.

Students and guests listen attentively as Ed Feulner makes introductions.

During the banquet, pledges of the fraternities served as waiters.

The Freshmen Class courageously positioned themselves on the new frontier of Regis College, and demonstrated that their youth and inexperience was not long to be a handicap. Their unity was expressed in their mass escape on the Freshman Hike, the chartering of a bus to the Coronation ball, the initiating of a Freshmen Closed Retreat, and their surprising capture of third place in intramural football.

Regis men always look to the future.

There's nothing in the cook book about shutting off the damn water!

—Influential in his life are his associates, and the interests he shares with them. Man's future success depends upon his ability to live with and in society, and thus his extra-curricular activities become important to his total development.

ORGANIZATIONS

STUDENT ADMINISTRATION

The Premier Party swept five of the seven positions on the 1962-63 Executive Board of the Student Senate.

The Board upheld tradition and advanced billing by sponsoring the biggest and best Ranger Day in the history of the event. The traditional activities, under the direction of Dennis Dalpes, were carried off with marked efficiency which was soon to become a trademark of the 62-63 Board.

As soon as the election was determined, the Board pursued a policy of more frequent meetings and greater discussion of issues to enable the General Assembly members to participate more fully in the events of the school. In addition, a marked increase in public relations activity, due to Dave Yezzi's untiring work, created a new image of the Student Senate in the eyes of many observers.

One of the principle new activities of the Board was the Leadership Conference which was held in Estes Park. With Ed Feulner acting as chairman, the student delegates and school officials arrived at a more thorough understanding of the problems which face the College.

Dan Dalpes, Freshman Initiation Chairman, was responsible for this major undertaking which included the appearance of the Jimmy Dorsey Orchestra at the Freshman Frolic. Joe Fanganello, Vice President of the Board, performed his duties as Honors Banquet chairman in an admirable manner, while Tim Campion was always available for financial consultation. Denny Lawler, who held the unenviable position of elections chairman, always managed to see that the student elections were carried out in an efficient manner.

Implementation of various platform planks saw such novel features as a classical concert, new equipment for the student center, a complete revision of the constitution of the Student Senate, and an active participation in various national student organizations. In addition, Regis was a charter member of the newly formed Colorado Collegiate Association which hopes to increase intercollegiate cooperation among the schools of the state.

Through their untiring efforts and the implementation of their policies, the 1962-63 Executive Board led the student body to a new awareness of their responsibilities as students of Regis.

DENVER CLUB

OFFICERS: J. Wanebo, Secretary; P. Farley, Vice-President; J. Springer, President; R. Ostberg, Treasurer; L. Beirich, Vice-President.

The Denver Club has a long tradition of service to the school. Founded primarily for those students who did not reside on campus and who were ill-informed about student activities, the club now embraces about fifty students.

Members of the club begin early in the year making contributions to campus life by meeting the incoming freshmen and providing transportation from the airport and the depot to the campus. Student assistance at the Fall Convocation was another phase of their many activities. Ranger Day, Commencement Week exercises, migrations to basketball games, ushers and guides, and many other varied activities are but some of the functions that the Denver Club embraces.

Other activities are of a more private nature in that they are limited to members only. Several parties of this nature were held during the year, including the traditional Christmas caroling party.

Thus has the Denver Club carried out the pledge made to the school, this being to be the best service club on campus.

The Irish Regis Association has a two-fold purpose: to provide its members with spiritual, social, and cultural activity; and to imbue the campus with an appreciation of the Gaelic culture. Since its birth on campus four years ago the I.R.A. has achieved notable success in fulfilling its aims. Along social lines, the Irish Club co-sponsors, with the Denver Catholic Charities, the annual, city-wide St. Patrick's Day Ball. Other social activities include numerous picnics, parties and dances during the school year. In fulfilling its cultural aims, the club has organized the I.R.A. Choir, the I.R.A. dancers and singers, presented films on Ireland, and hosted several notable guest speakers. The Association fulfills its spiritual purpose by having group Masses and Communion Breakfasts, by sponsoring the St. Patrick's Day High Mass, and by actively supporting the Jesuit Seminary Aid Association.

Other activities in which the I.R.A. has distinguished itself are their successful Orphan's Party and the inauguration and support of a soccer team which they have sponsored for the past three years.

The Regis College Sodality, the oldest organization on campus, is devoted to inspiring young Catholic men to a Christian way of life above that required of every individual Catholic. In striving to achieve this end, the Sodality stresses daily Mass and Holy Communion, the rosary, meditation, and mental prayer. Regis sodalists are required to make a closed retreat sometime during the course of the school year. Thus the Sodality prepares its members for positions in the world which requires solid Catholic leadership.

Admission to the Sodality is determined by a prospective Sodalists performance during his probationary period. During this period, about a semester's length, the probationer learns the Sodality's way of life and then decides whether he thinks he can fit it into his personal life; the Sodality judges whether the probationer will be beneficial to the organization and whether he can be expected to fulfill the commitments placed upon him as a member of the Sodality.

The most important apostolic work of the Regis Sodality is the teaching of Catechism at the Golden Industrial School for Boys. Each Sunday morning the Sodalists journey to the school and spend two hours instructing these boys in the basic truths of their faith.

The purpose of the Regis College Aquinas Academy is to develop an insight into the varied problems of philosophy among its members. It also provides for the inquiring student the equal to the "honors program" offered on many campuses across the nation. Through reading and discussing representative works in certain areas of philosophy, the members of the Academy satisfy their intellectual curiosity.

Phenomenology was the theme of this year's discussions. Under the able leadership of the club's moderator, Fr. Harry Klocker, S.J., the members themselves lectured and discussed the many aspects of this provocative subject. The scholarly and academic tradition of the Academy were well carried on this year, led by its president, Larry Beirich, and secretary, Pat Hickey.

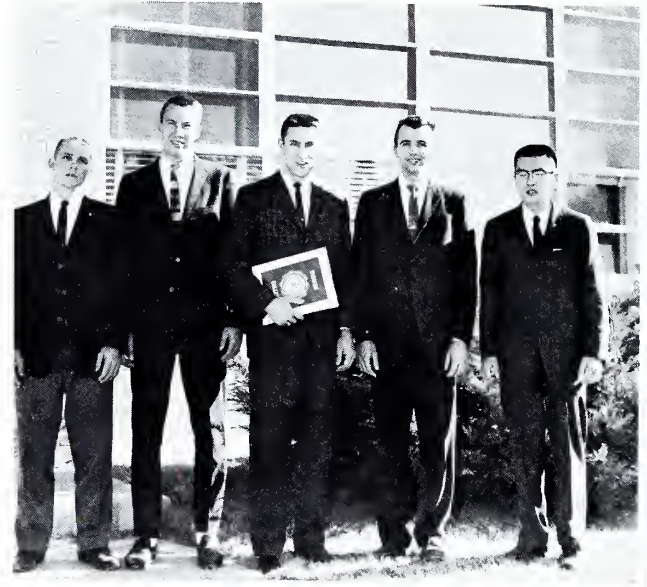

STUDENT NATIONAL EDUCATION ASSOCIATION

The Student National Education Association, an affiliate of the NEA, serves Regis College well in directing education students to a deeper understanding of the teaching profession.

This year, under its able leadership, a marked increase of interest took place within the club. To fulfill their main objective, guest speakers were invited to speak to the members of the club. Among these speakers during the first semester were Dr. Glen O. Stocking, Head of the Department of Education and Psychology at Regis; Fr. James Eatough, S.J., Principle of Regis High School; Mr. George Villano, Professor at Regis Night School; and a panel of Regis graduates who are presently in the teaching profession.

The club was well-represented at the education workshop held at the Park Lane Hotel here in Denver, and also at the State Convention held in Colorado Springs in December.

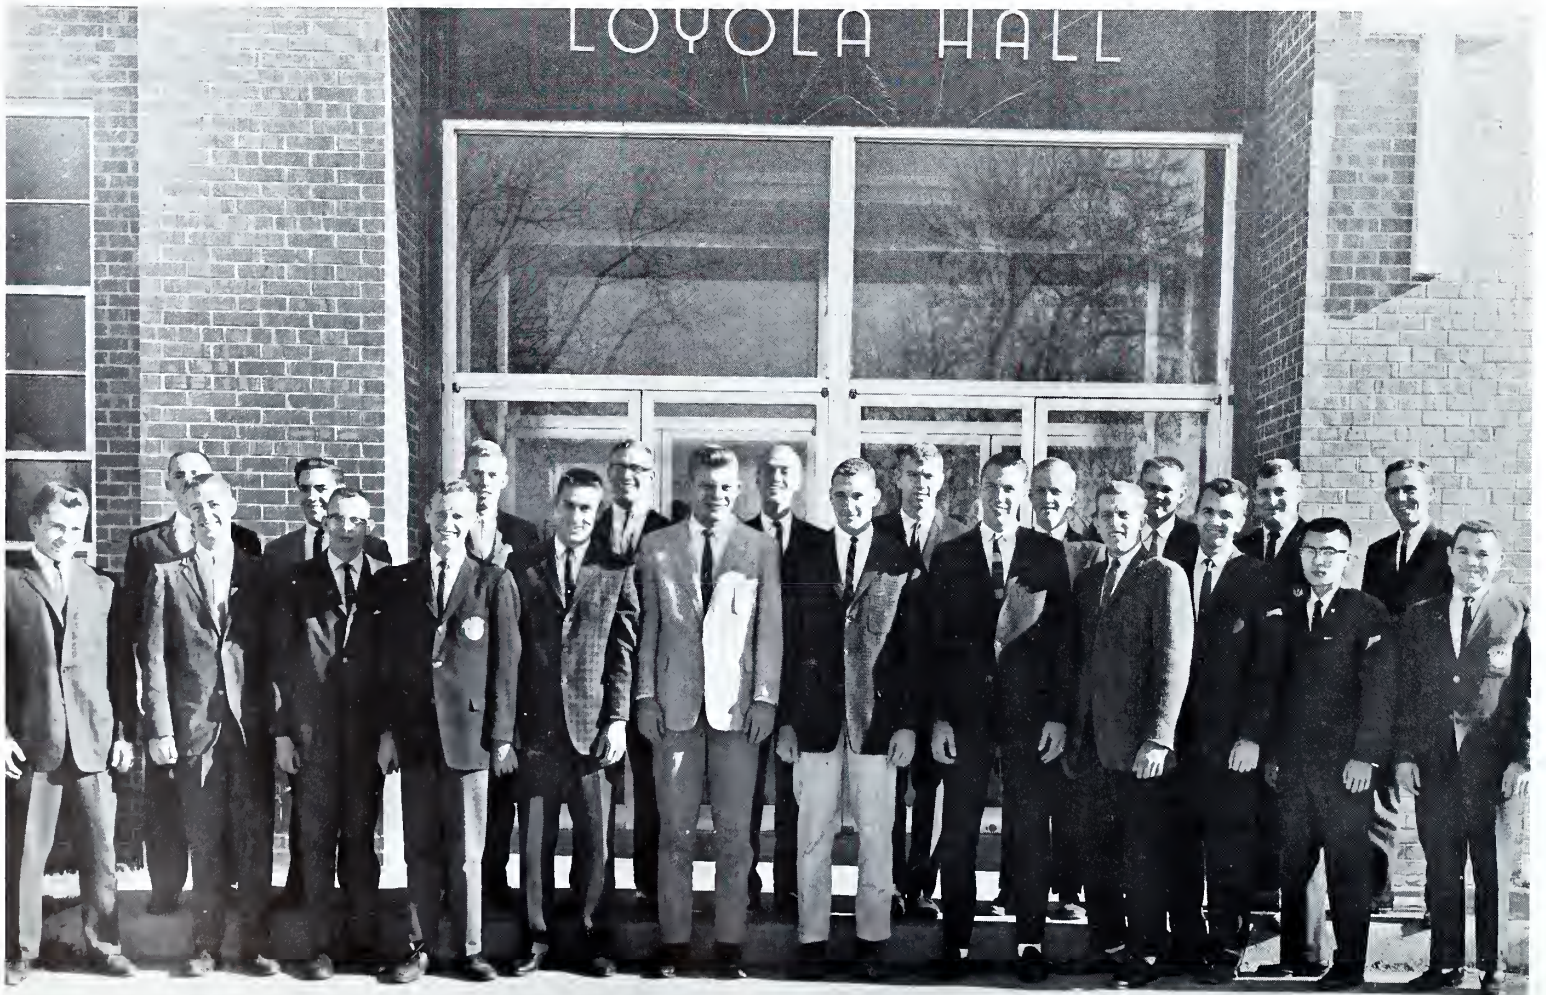

The SNEA meets twice each month, but in order to allow all education students an opportunity to attend, alternate meetings were innovated bi-monthly. This extremely young organization, increasing in size from year to year, is indeed a tremendous asset to the college, and has witnessed great enthusiasm on the part of all involved.

The Regis College Playhouse is a semi-academic organization of students of Regis College, devoted to the promotion of dramatic art on the Regis campus. In order to do this, it provides opportunities for members of the student body and faculty to discuss, see, and participate in, every phase of theater.

During the 1962-63 academic year, the Playhouse co-sponsored the series of feature length motion pictures known as the Sunday Night Movies. The series, presented on alternate Sunday nights throughout the year, provided an opportunity for members of the student body and faculty to view quality comedy, adventure, and dramatic movies.

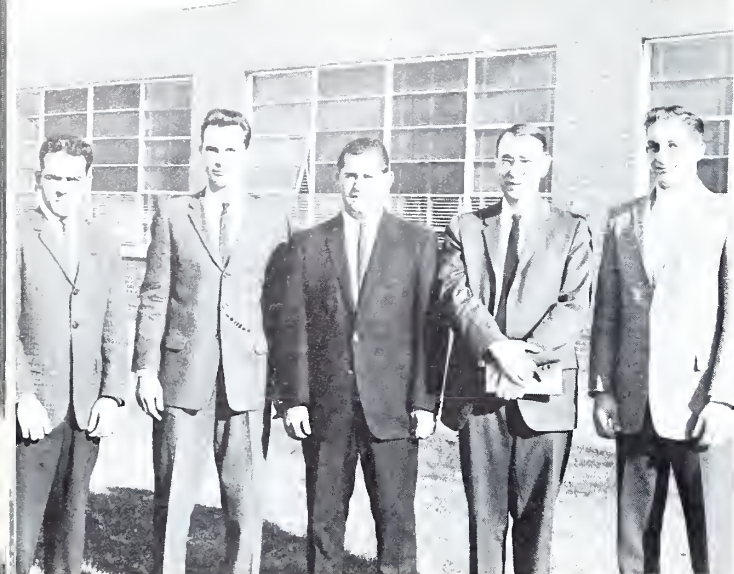

In order to provide an opportunity for interested persons to participate more closely in theater, a program of student produced and directed drama was presented. The Playhouse also sponsored its traditional Regis College Revue, a musical-comedy variety show, and the Ranger Day Talent Show.

The Playhouse actively assisted the Speech Department in its drama program. During the year, Murder in the Cathedral by T. S. Eliot, The Enchanted by Jean Giraudoux, and The Glass Menagerie by Tennessee Williams were presented under the direction of Reginald Bain. Playhouse members filled key positions in the casts and on the production and technical staffs of each play.

Playhouse officers for the 62-63 year were James Curtan, President; James Schmit, Vice-President; Dean Stone, Secretary; and Bill Souba, Treasurer. Mr. Reginald Bain, Head of the Department of Speech, served as moderator.

OFFICERS: J. Curtan, President; W. Souba, Treasurer; Mr. Bain, Moderator; D. Stone, Secretary; J. Schmit, Vice-President.

OFFICERS: T. Ficco, Treasurer; J. Pedotto, President; J. Gerome, Secretary; Mr. Bechtolt, Moderator; G. Cavalieri, Vice-President.

ITALIAN CLUB

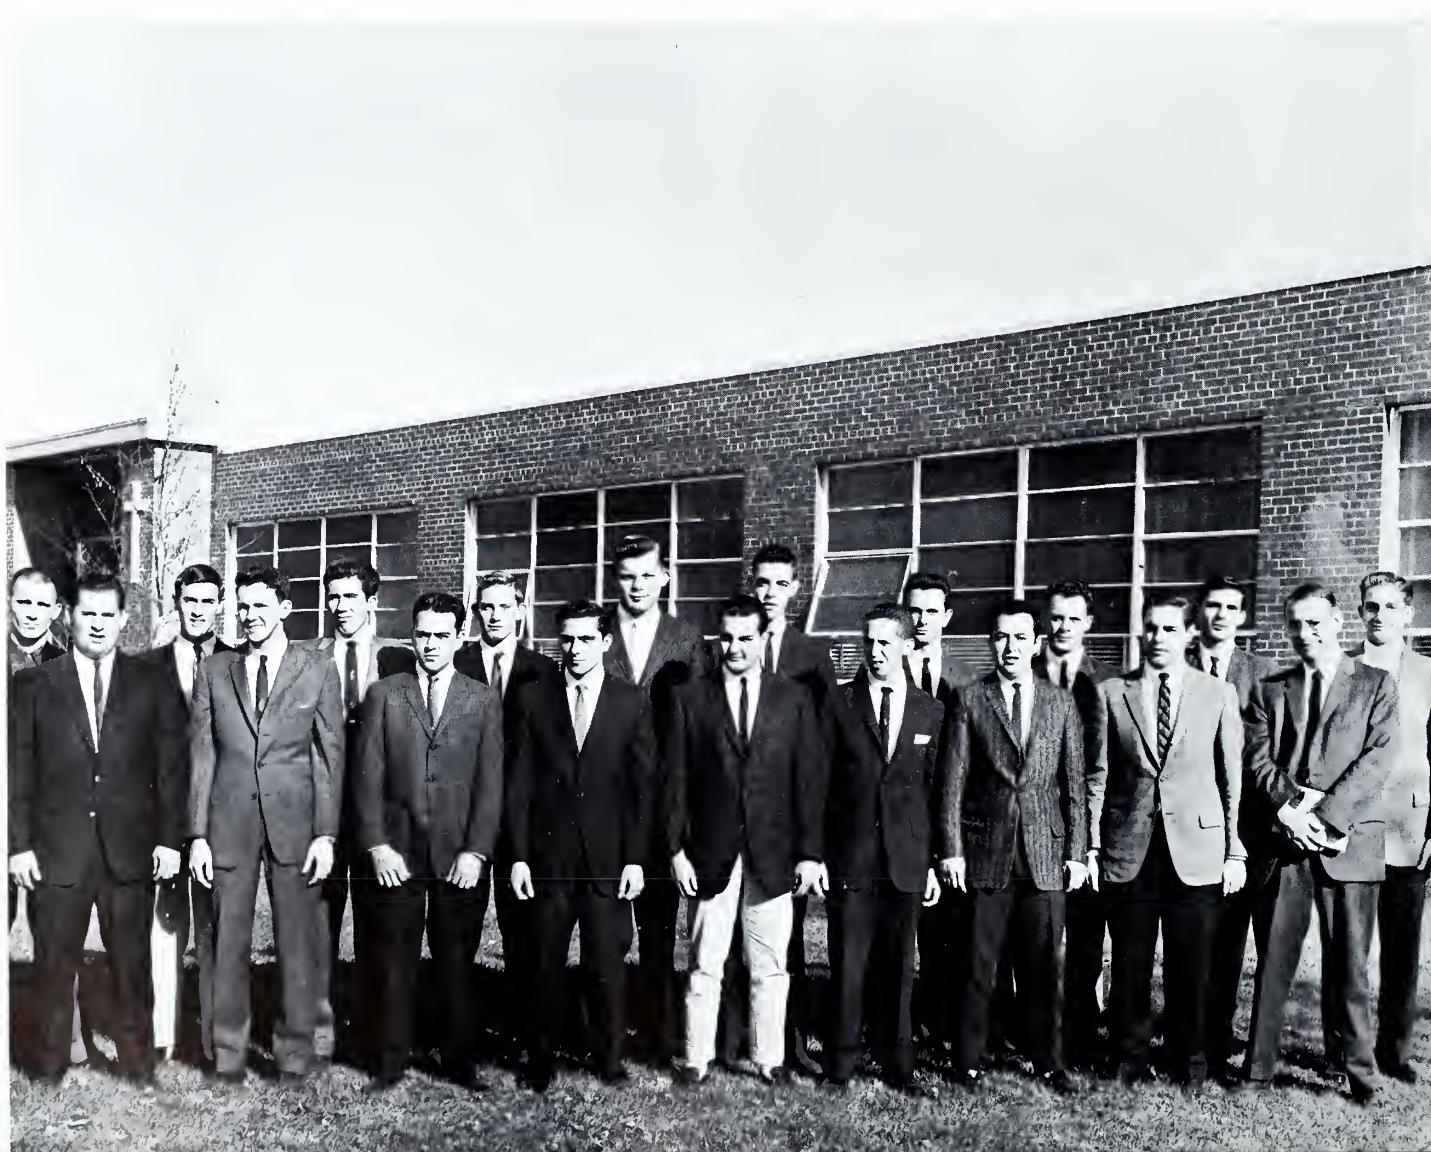

The Italian Club of Regis endeavors to further an understanding and appreciation of Italian Culture and to promote amicable relationships among the various student organizations for the betterment of Regis.

The Italian club undertook and successfully carried out one of the most important and exciting events of last year's Ranger Day — sponsoring the Go-Cart races held on the Student center Parking Lot.

To its credit, the membership was greatly increased and the use of blazers and a crest was initiated. Among various other events sponsored for the benefit of the school, the members have sponsored events of a more private nature.

The membership of the R Club is comprised of those men who have distinguished themselves in inter-collegiate athletics. These men have brought to Regis the acclaim she rightly deserves in competitive sports. Clean sportsmanship in all phases of athletic life is the pledge of the members participating in this organization.

In addition to their primary function of stimulating student, faculty, and alumni interest in athletics at Regis, the R Club, has undertaken a number of new projects. Student migrations to basketball games, as evidenced by this years trip to C.S.U., are one of the many projects undertaken by the R Club.

The purpose of these activities is to further a greater interest in sports whether students wish to actively participate in or merely observe them.

The purpose of St. John Berchmans Society is to promote and further intelligent participation in liturgy of the Catholic Church. By assisting as servers at some of the fifty daily masses offered on campus, by instructing others in the manner of serving the Mass, and by supplying the students with Dialogue Mass leaders, members of the Society acquire a deeper appreciation of the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass in daily life. The Society's example of unselfish perseverance and determination directly influences the spiritual development of the Student Body.

The Society holds meetings every month, and at these meetings various guest speakers discuss various aspects of Church liturgy. By its dedication to Christ, its service to His altar, and by the study of the liturgy of His Church, the St. John Berchmans Society has become one of the largest and most respected organizations on campus.

ALPHA DELTA GAMMA

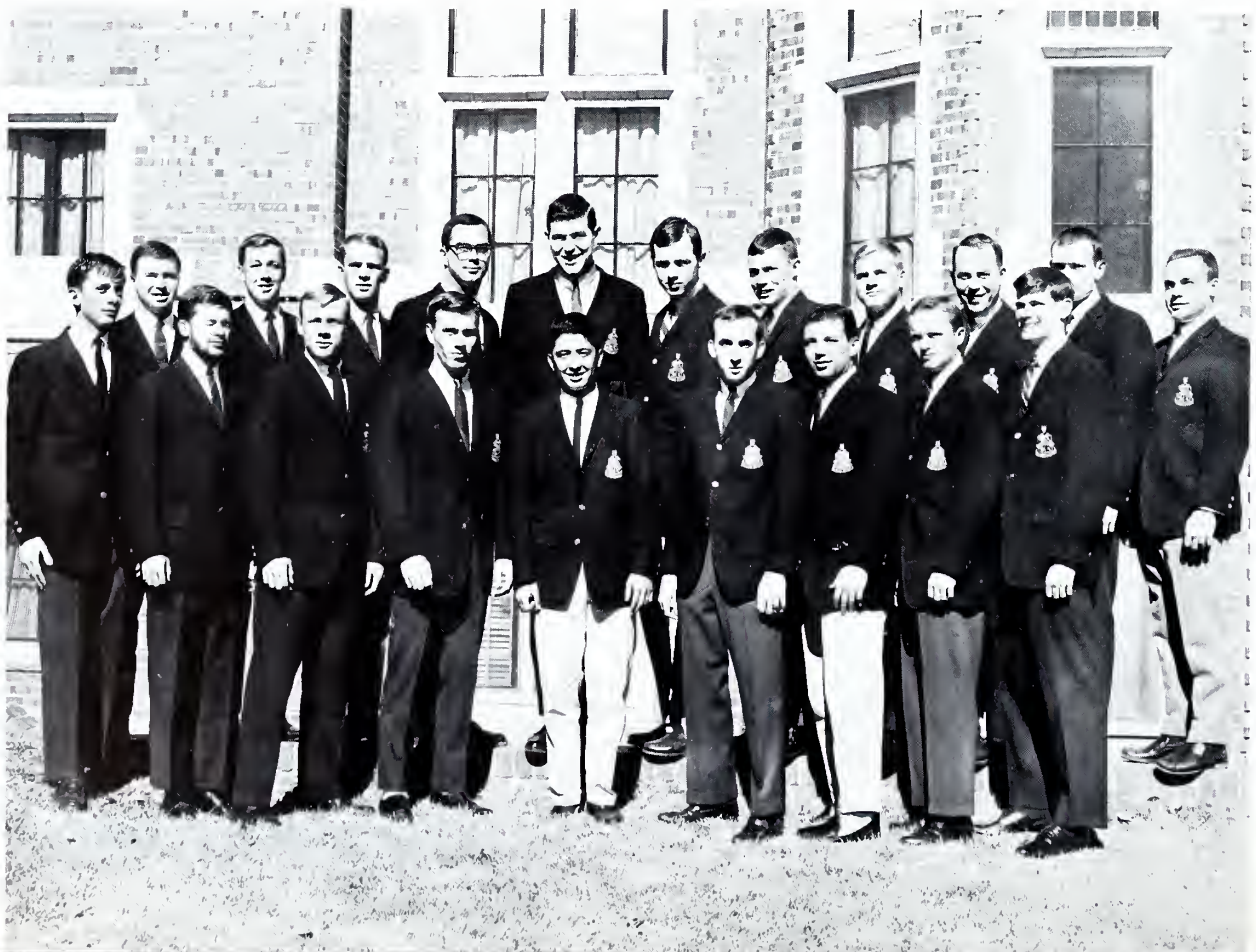

Alpha Delta Gamma, a national Catholic social fraternity, has for its purpose the uniting of congenial minded men in a brotherhood of love and high respect in order to foster the achievements of high Christian ideals, sound learning, and social development among its members and their fellow students.

A.D.G. is well known on the campus for such outstanding functions as the annual Halloween Dance and the social event of the year — The Coronation Ball. In addition to the above mentioned activities the frat sponsors numerous parties, banquets, and smokers for its members and their guests.

In order to fulfill its service aim, the brothers undertake a number of projects for the school and other organizations. In its spiritual development A.D.G. holds a monthly communion Mass program, and an annual closed retreat for its members.

Alpha Kappa Psi, the national business fraternity on campus, exists to instill in its members the qualities of leadership in business and school activity. Its purposes, then, are to further the individual welfare of its members through the aspect of brotherhood, to foster scientific research in the fields of commerce and finance, to educate the public to appreciate and demand higher ideals in business, and to promote and advance courses leading to degrees in business administration.

The Gamma Sigma chapter of Regis participates actively in campus-wide activities. Besides its membership-limited banquets, Communion-breakfasts, smokers, and social gatherings, the fraternity promotes social functions open to general school attendance. The most noteworthy function of the year is the annual Presentation Ball held during the early part of the school year. Service to Regis is considered important to the Brothers of Alpha Kappa Psi; thus the fraternity offers its services readily to the school and also co-sponsors various school events.

Rho Chi Sigma was founded in 1929 and is one of the oldest organizations on campus. This science fraternity is primarily devoted to a scientific liberal education and a Christian intellectual development for its members.

The fraternity has four objectives. Rho Chi Sigma strives first to instill in its members a desire for scientific knowledge; secondly to further the tradition of sound intellectual achievement on the Regis campus; thirdly, to foster a strong feeling of brotherhood and union among its members; and, finally, to develop the moral and social character of its members.

To accomplish the first aspect of this purpose, the fraternity sponsors at some of its weekly meetings lectures by faculty members and guest lecturers in the field of science. The second aspect is fulfilled by the co-sponsoring of the Sunday Night Movies which offer the student a convenient recreational outlet.

The members fulfill their third goal primarily through a common intellectual interest in science and through its spiritual and social activities. The achievement of the fourth purpose permeates and directs Rho Chi Sigma in all of its undertakings.

R A N G E R

Experience proved beneficial for the Ranger editorial staff which was comprised this year mainly of seniors. Under the leadership of Dennis Kiefer, the staff determined to improve on the excellent production of 1962. This attempt has become evident in many areas of the book, but there is no one to say that operations proceeded without difficulty.

Overcoming the major hitches at the beginning of the year, the members ground out the first ninety pages in order to meet an exceptionally early deadline in October. As usual, the last minute pressures and rushes were still the biggest factors to contend with at deadline, but the staff's previous experience with such obstacles lessened the strain during the wee hours of the morning. Photographers and copy writers found themselves constantly bombarded by hysterical section editors during these many crises, but unity and friendship always seemed to weather the storm.

Definitely it is difficult to estimate the countless hours that comprised the producing of the Ranger; the many nights without sleep; the many heart failures when deadlines ran parallel to final exams. But frustration, consternation, and mass confusion were not to be triumphant, and a difficult task became a job well done.

GLEE CLUB

The Glee Club, after vacating the Regis campus for a number of years, has been revived in an outstanding display of force. The movement to reorganize, actually began three years ago when a few "diehards" under the direction of Regio graduate, Mr. Regis Malloy, reformed the college choir to sing Sunday high masses. The group, fortunate in receiving the services of the fine organist and pianist, Miss Gloria McCormack, succeeded in making their lungs heard in impressing fashion over the campus.

This year, as a reward for their endeavor, Regis College acquired the services of the Golden Symphony, and Englewood Symphony conductor, Mr. T. Gordon Parks, to direct the reformed Glee Club. For those wishing credit for their exceptional voices, Music 5 was adopted into the curriculum, and one hour of credit was offered during the second semester.

The group opened their many engagements in high style, singing for the state-wide Alpha Kappa Psi banquet, after only a brief four weeks practice as a group. They then sang a high mass and gave a performance for the IRA Communion-breakfast at Loretto Heights College. On December 9th, the Glee Club, joining with the Lakewood Methodist Choir to form a 125 voice chorus, sang Handel's Messiah, with the Golden Symphony Orchestra accompanying. Their second semester highlights were the touring of parochial high schools, and their performance at the annual Honors Banquet.

DEBATE SOCIETY

Activities both on and off campus have occupied Debate and Oratory Society members this year. The First Annual Regis Forensics Tournament was held at Regis during October. Schools from three states attended the two day tourney. In December, Pat O'Malley took first place in the Second Annual Regis Oratorical Contest.

Regis speakers gained numerous honors at other colleges and universities. Steve Leonard received an outstanding speakers certificate at The Sixth Annual Jesuit Debate Tournament at Loyola University in Chicago, Bill Convery received an outstanding speakers award at the Colorado State College Conference, and at the Twenty-Eighth Annual Rocky Mountain Speech Conference at Denver University, Pat O'Malley won second in oratory. Also Steve Leonard placed third in Impromptu, and Dan McNally garnered a finalists certificate in oral interpretation.

Moderator, Reginald Bain was elected President of the Colorado Oratory Association in February. Because of their speech abilities, the debate members have also been serving at local high school meets. The entire club is to be commended for their achievements.

REGIS COLLEGE BENCHWARMERS

The Regis College Benchwarmers is an organization whose primary aim is to stimulate an active student interest in all student activities, particularly athletics. At every basketball game you will see a solid core of Benchwarmers vigorously indicating pleasure or displeasure at some turn of the game. After games and at various other times, they sponsor dances in the Student Center at which excited Regians can celebrate a victory or forget a defeat. These Benchwarmer dances have proved highly successful, with an average attendance of approximately 350 students.

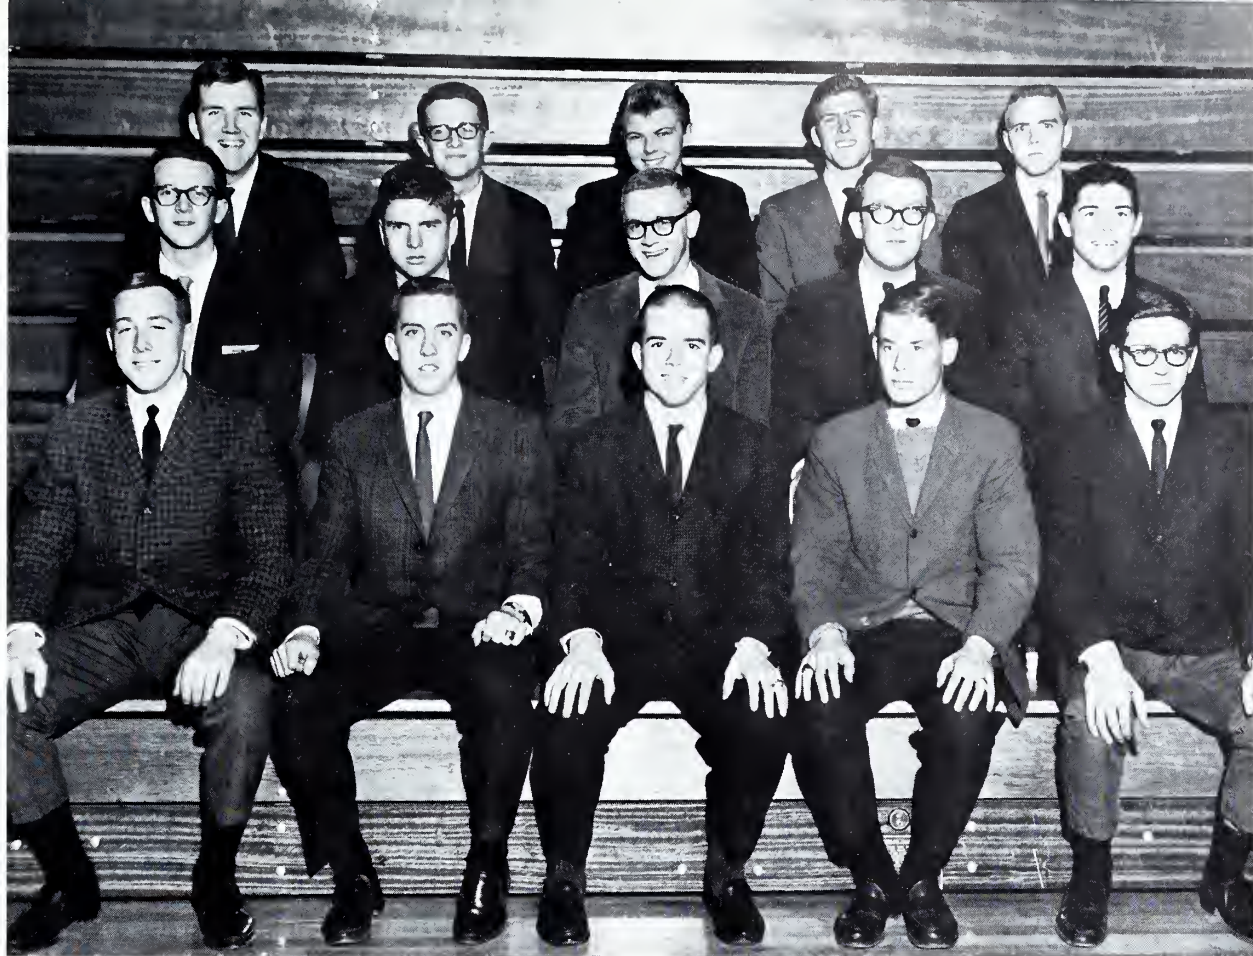

In order to insure effective backing for the team, the club takes the responsibility of selecting the Cheerleaders.

At the awards banquet in March, the group gives two awards: one for The Most Spirited Student, the other for the Outstanding Regis Basketball Player in the Regis vs. Air Force Academy game.

This year the club participated in weekly discussions with Loretto Heights on various literary topics. During the second semester the club devoted much of its discussion to works of literature that are on the reading list for English Majors.

The Club also encourages students in their creative efforts, particularly in writing. In this connection it encourages its members to enter the Jesuit essay contest, and those who do enter are often judged among the top in the contest.

THE CONSERVATIVE CLUB

The American Society, the conservatives of Regis College, is a new organization on the campus. The group, which has as its primary purpose the study of conservative thought, was recently officially recognized by the school authorities.

Initial activities of the club included lectures on trends in education and in politics, and a talk on the philosophical basis of conservatism. Further activities included the sponsorship of a weekly newspaper, which was free to the student body.

While still a small group, the firm foundation which was made by the group's original members, should provide a basis for an outstanding organization in the future.

THE INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

In accord with the world wide movement to establish communication and understanding between the various peoples of the world, the International Relations Club was established at Regis this year. The nucleus of the club was made up of the foreign exchange students on the campus who saw the need for an exchange of ideas between themselves and their fellow students.

The club has striven to cultivate an awareness of the cultural and intellectual aspects of foreign countries and their people. This goal was achieved, in part, by lectures delivered both by the students themselves and by outside speakers, and by the showing of current news-reels.

The club has obtained international recognition through its affiliation with the "People to People Club." This affiliation enables the local group to take advantage of a broader exchange of ideas and to be able to obtain economical rates on any European sojourns they might venture on.

S I G E R S K I C L U B

The main purpose of the Ski Club is sponsoring weekend trips to nearby winter sports areas as often as possible "at popular prices." The club also obtains purchase and rental discounts for its members at some downtown ski shops.

This year it sponsored several "mixer" trips with the Heights, an intramural race day, speakers from the Colorado ski patrol, and a race for the coveted Regis traveling trophy. And the more experienced members devoted some of their time to the instruction of the newcomers to the sport.

Requirement for membership takes some amount of courage and ambition. How much?

Enough zeal to rise with the sun for the frequent excursions into Colorado's Winter Wonderland and enough courage to face the thousands of pairs of form fitting stretch pants found at every ski area. This year as in past years the Ski Club was one of the largest organizations on campus.

Although somewhat pinched for funds this year, the club also fielded an intercollegiate ski team, which in its second year, creditably represented the student body.

BROWN AND GOLD REVIEW

The Brown and Gold Review aims at fulfilling a two-fold purpose: to report and comment upon the news and activities of Regis College, and to provide the student body with an outlet for creative endeavor. In order to efficiently fulfill this purpose, the publication is divided into two sections: the News section, under which falls reporting of school activities, editorials, public announcements and sports news; and the Review section which includes, poetry, short stories, cartoons, columns, book and film reviews, and various feature articles.

Each issue, the editorial board meets to decide what subject will be featured in the coming issue; for example, this past year the Review has featured a sports issue, a literary issue, and a humor issue among others. This has been the second year in which the Brown and Gold has worked under this new format; with each issue its editors and staff endeavor to better fill the needs of the student body in the area of publications.

THE OUTSTANDING

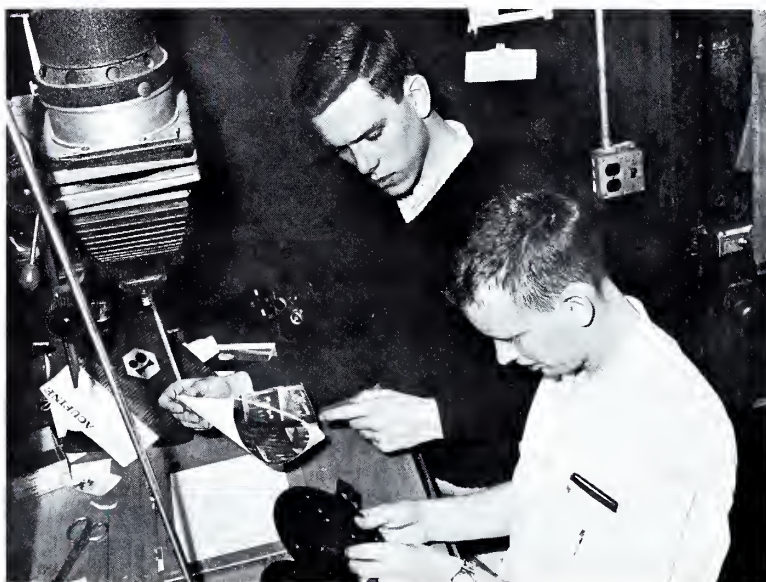

FRATERNITY RHO CHI SIGMA

Rho Chi Sigma Fraternity was chosen as the outstanding fraternity for 1963. The Brothers were distinguishing both in their service to the school in assisting with the "Sunday Night Movies," and providing help for numerous school functions; and also in fulfilling the aims of their organization, which are to instill in its members a desire for knowledge in the field of chemistry. Dedicated to the academic as well as social growth of its members, Rho Chi Sigma truly deserves the honor of Outstanding Fraternity.

PUBLICATION RANGER

Due to the excellent production of 1962, and to the outstanding progress and work completed before March, 1963 on the '63 yearbook, the Ranger was chosen as the outstanding publication of Regis College. Realizing the importance of timeliness as well as quality in the production of a yearbook, the staff sought to make all deadlines and can be congratulated on their excellent work performed this year.

SERVICE SIGER SKI CLUB

The youthful Siger Ski Club proved their presence on campus by being selected as the outstanding service organization at Regis. No one can deny the attractiveness of Colorado to the sport of skiing, and the club did much in convincing many a Regis student to attempt the sport by providing ski trips and rates bi-weekly for those interested. The club also assisted in many of the school functions.

THE OUTSTANDING ORGANIZATION

DEBATE SOCIETY

This year at the annual Honors Banquet held on March 3, 1963, the Debate Society of Regis College captured the coveted Outstanding Organization of 1963 trophy. Contrary to previous years, the competition for the award was greatly altered this year. The organizations themselves were divided into four general classes; fraternities, publications, services, and academics. Each organization then vied for the outstanding honor within their own field, and the Outstanding Organization was chosen from these four. Winning in their respective fields were; Rho Chi Sigma, Outstanding Fraternity; The Regis Ranger, Outstanding Publication; Siger Ski Club, Outstanding Service Organization; and the Debate Society, Outstanding Academic Organization.

Under the able leadership of President, Steve Leonard, and Moderator, Reginald Bain, the Debate Society provided laurels for Regis by gaining numerous honors at oratorical contests throughout the nation. Because of their dauntless spirit and highly satisfactory performances, the Debate Society most assuredly deserves the title of the Outstanding Organization of Regis College.

ATHLETICS

INTRAMURAL FOOTBALL

Though the story has often been repeated, it never seems to grow old. The Seven Mules once more won the intramural football title hands down, compiling a seasonal record of nine wins while suffering one defeat. Last year's all-intramural champs — Alpha Kappa Psi — took second, while the Broadjumpers — the newly formed freshmen team — captured third.

Displaying the finesse that has made them champs three of four years, the senior Seven Mules placed five players on the Brown and Gold all-star team. But to any and all who witnessed the weekly "battles," the strength of all the teams involved can be easily attested. Chuck Swanson was picked as the intramural football player of the season.

RANGERS CRUSH ST. MARY'S

The Regis College Rangers opened their season with a pair of games against St. Mary's. Both contests offered little in the way of opposition as the Rangers rolled over their opponents. Game honors were taken by Ben Wesley in the first encounter as the high-flying Ranger dumped in 23 points. Freshman Cozel Walker poured in 26 points and Lou Stout added 25 more as the Hallmen again emerged victorious in the second game.

NORTH DAKOTA STATE FALLS

Lou Stout, Cozel Walker, and Ben Wesley scored 68 points among them and thereby outscored the entire North Dakota State squad by 29 points. Add to this the brilliant floor play and shooting of Dean Sullivan and Bill Whalen and you get a 93-39 romp.

HARDIN-SIMMONS HARDENS

Opening with a full-court press and a hot-handed offense, the quintet from Hardin-Simmons looked as though they may give the Rangers quite a battle. The Regis machine began chewing and amassed a 25 point cushion by half time. Lou Stout led all scorers with 22 points and Jimmy Jones added several beautiful baskets late in the second half.

CINDERELLA MEETS MIDNIGHT

San Diego State provided stiff competition for the Rangers and the Hallmen would have had about as much if they had used a pumpkin instead of a basketball. A hustling zone defense cut down the effectiveness of the run-and-gun team and the Rangers managed a 58-52 win.

Wesley executes a beautiful backhand lay-up.

A former Marine All-Star, Freshman Cozel Walker gave Regis one of the best rebounders in the nation and added a terrific shooting eye.

STOUT EFFORT FUTILE

Though Lou Stout rammed home 33 points, the Rangers were defeated by Utah State in a well-played ball game. Stout saw his output exceeded by one as Wayne Estes hit for 34 in the 83-75 Utah State victory.

WESLEY AND WALKER WALLOP WESTMINSTER

Cozel Walker and Ben Wesley scored 20 points each as the Regis quintet carved out an 84-61 victory over the Westminster Parsons. Also prominent was the play of Jon Rapp, a promising Sophomore.

LOVE THAT REF

A trip to the West Coast found the Rangers on the short end of a 65-64 score. A series of fouls called on the Rangers gave San Diego State a trio of free throws with one second left in the overtime. All three were made.

WOLFPACK TORPEDOED

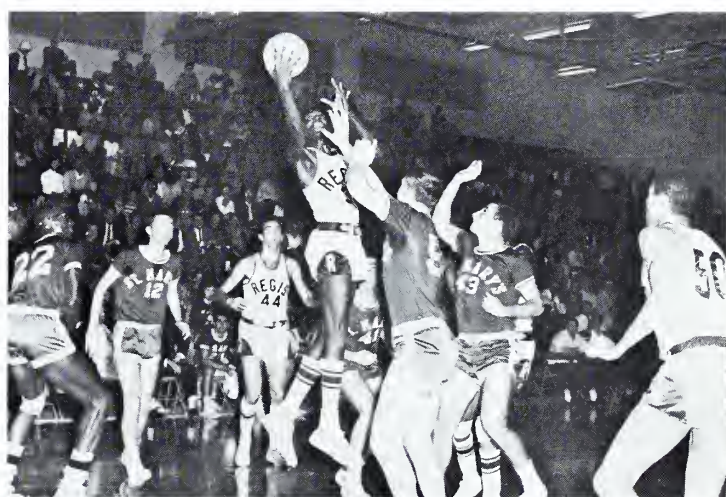

Nevada University ran into a red-hot bunch of Regions and all of them added something to the scoring column in a 101-68 romp.

ST. MICHAEL'S DOWNED

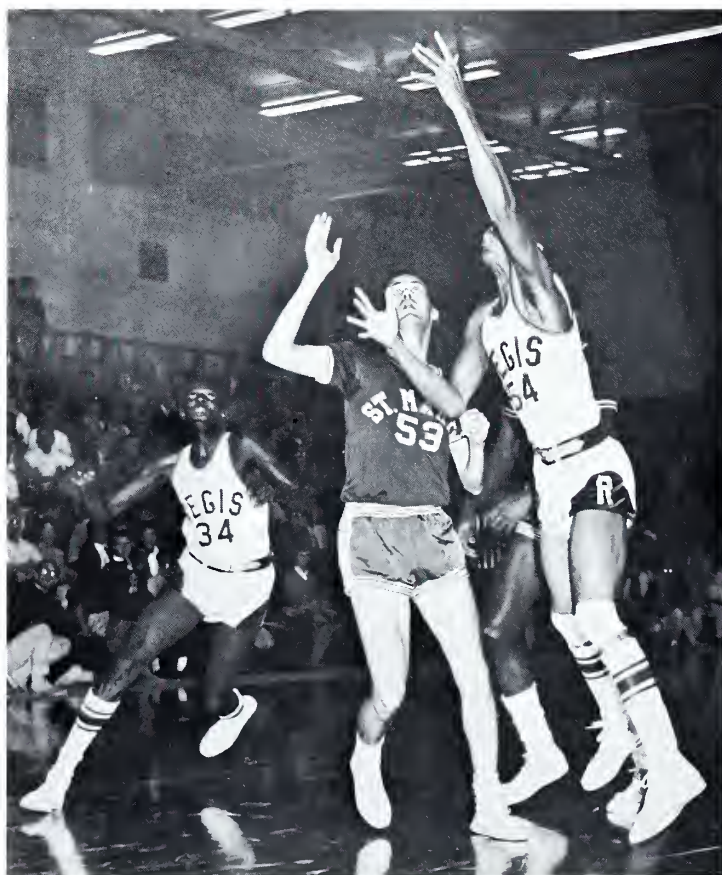

A rusty Ranger squad took about 20 minutes to limber themselves up as they methodically chopped down the Santa Fe visitors by a score of 84-57. Cozel Walker hit 28 points for the Rangers.

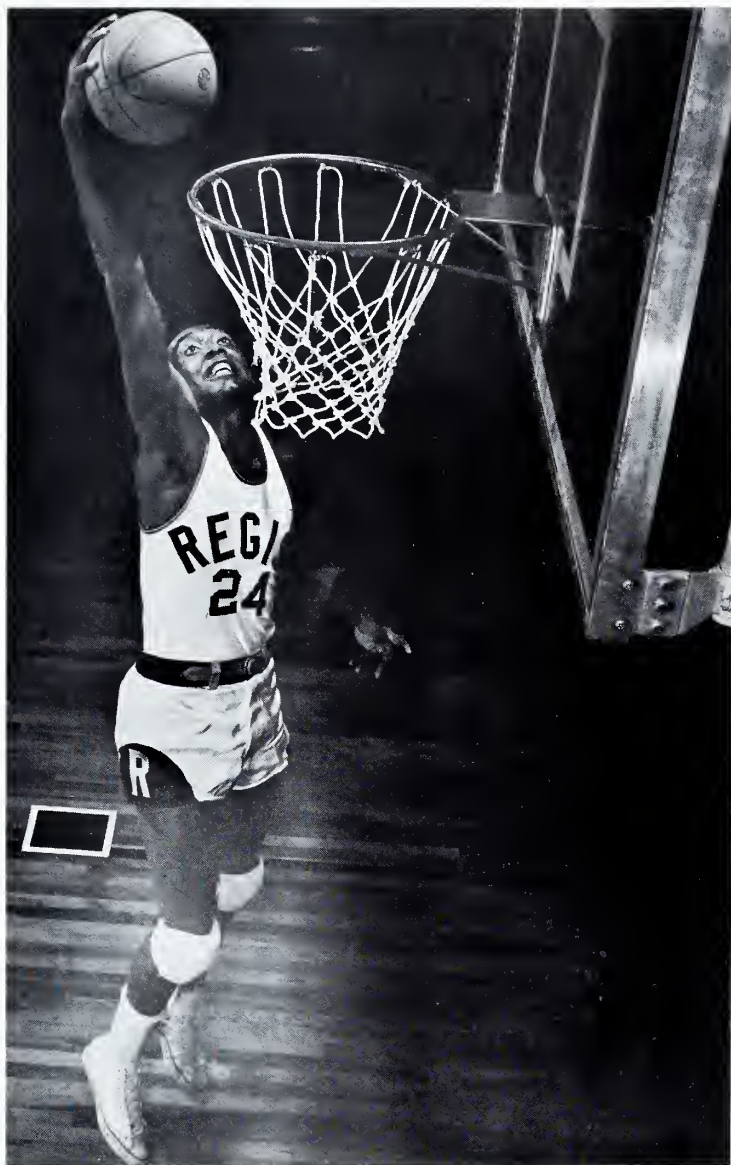

Lou Stout provided a competent running mate for Wesley and often led the team in all departments.

Sophomore Dennis Crane developed into a tremendous outside shot and driver. At one point in the season, Crane sported close to a 20 point average.

Oklahoma City University proved not only too tall, but too fast as they fashioned out a 79-61 victory over the touring Rangers.

MORMONS MAULED

Sophomores Dennis Crane and Roger Harris led the way as Regis defeated Westminster for the second time this year, 78-43. Crane and Harris had 22 and 14 points respectively, while Jon Rapp hauled in 18 rebounds.

RANGERS HIT CENTURY MARK AGAIN

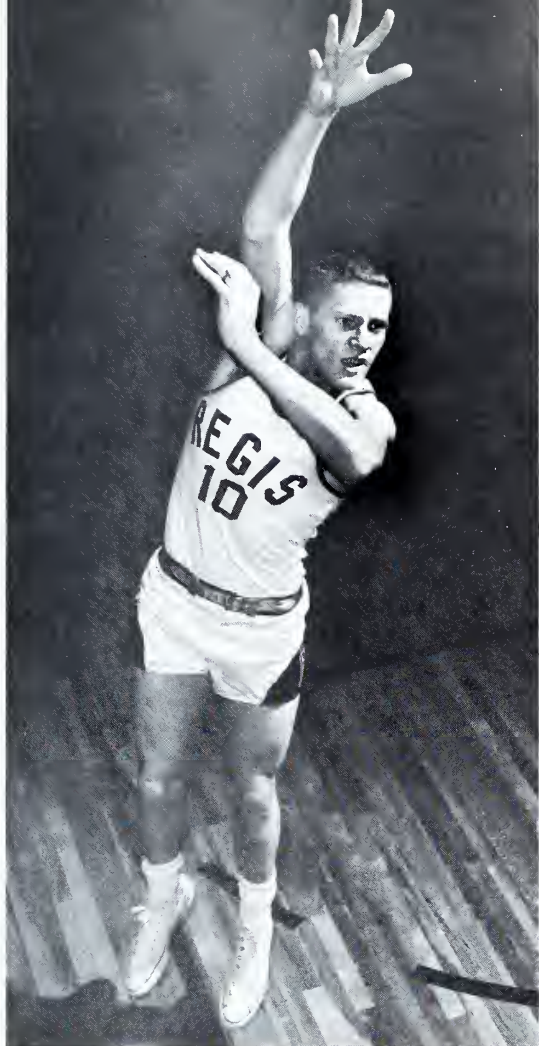

Ben Wesley scored 27 points in leading a 103-67 Ranger rout of New Mexico Highlands University. Dennis Crane continued his fine playing for the Regians as the classy Sophomore added 16 in the victory.

DENVER UNIVERSITY DUMPED

The perennial crosstown rivalry flared anew as D.U. and Regis met at the D. U. stadium. Stout and Walker led the Rangers with 21 and 18 points, respectively, taking the win 70-64.

REGIS HITS 112

The Rangers returned home and warmed up for their next meeting with St. Michael's with a 112-76 pasting of the Montana State Bobcats. Walker, Wesley, and Stout hit 23, 23, and 21 points.

KNIGHTS FALL AGAIN

Lou Stout hit 25 points and Cozel Walker added 15 more as the Knights of St. Michael's College once again fell before the Ranger onslaught. Regis won 81-54.

BLEW TWO TO C.S.U.

The Regis quintet suffered a miserable scoring night as the Aggies notched an 81-56 victory at Fort Collins. On the following night, the Rangers looked as though they might make it before they slackened in the second half and dropped a 63-50 decision to the crew from Moo U.

O.C.U. TOO TALL

Guard Bud Koper's 34 points and his running mate's 21 provided the spark which ignited Oklahoma City University to an 88-71 victory over Regis. Stout hit for 21 points and Walker and Crane added 18 each in a losing effort.

FOR THE BIRDS

An underdog Air Force five entered the Regis College Fieldhouse and carried away a 59-58 victory. Hitting better than half their shots, the Falcons won a squeaker as the Rangers had the ball for 22 seconds and failed to get a shot off.

D.U. DUMPED AGAIN

Senior forward Louis Stout furnished his classmates with a fine farewell as the lean Kentuckian scored 36 points against D.U. Stout was ably supported by Jimmy Jones, Dean Sullivan, and Ben Wesley, all departing Seniors.

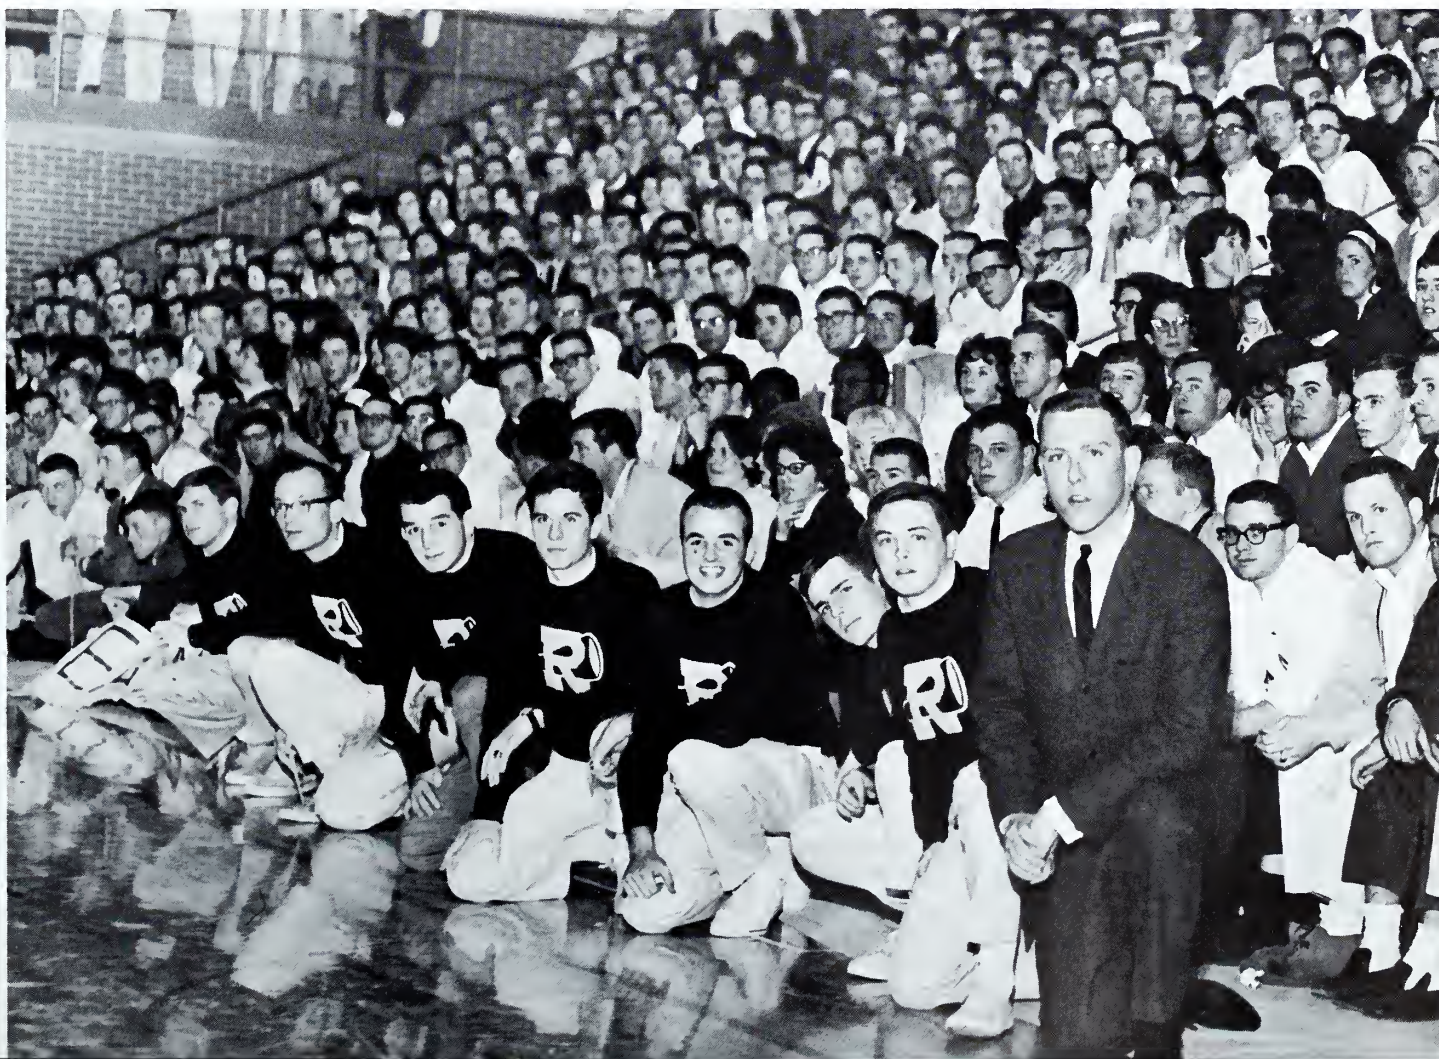

The 1962-63 version of the Regis College Rangers finished the season with a respectable record of fifteen wins and seven losses. Returning lettermen Jones, Sullivan, Stout, and Wesley were complemented by Freshman Cozel Walker and Sophomore Dennis Crane. Coach Joe B. Hall can be proud of his team as they head for the post-season tournaments.

NATIONAL CATHOLIC INVITATIONAL TOURNAMENT

Regis, capitalizing on their fine 15-7 seasonal performance, captured a bid to the National Catholic Invitational Tournament which was held in Louisville, Kentucky. Not since the days of the fabulous "buzz boys" of Regis in 1949 had there been a Catholic tournament, or had Regis received a bid to a tournament.

By virtue of the fact that the Rangers boasted three squad members and a Head Coach from Kentucky, Regis automatically was billed as the "sentimental favorites" of the tournament. And in their opening match against St. Bonaventure, Regis displayed brilliant ball handling only to go down to defeat in the final eight seconds of the game. The teams sparkling play and enthusiastic spirit was indeed a tribute to their '63 record.

It must be nice to be a hero.

Rapp, Lou Stout, Head Coach Joe B. Hall. KNEELING: Mike Giordano, Tom Kojis, Dean Sullivan, and Bill Whalen.

RANGERS DROP ONE POINT HEARTBREAKER TO BONNIES

A 20-foot jump shot with 8 seconds left in the game spelled the end of the road for the travelling Rangers. The Rangers led 75-74 with 32 seconds left in the game, but a poor pass was instrumental in setting up the winning bucket for St. Bonaventure. The loss of Cozel Walker with 3:38 left in the game hurt the Ranger cause. Ben Wesley led all Ranger scoring as the agile Senior forward collected 24 points to complement a hustling floor game.

CREIGHTON DOWNS FRIGID RANGERS

A jumping jack named Paul Silas thoroughly chewed up the Regis plans as the nation's leading rebounder raked the Coloradoans for 30 points and 23 rebounds. Freshman Cozel Walker nearly equaled Silas as he hauled in 20 rebounds. Ben Wesley and Dennis Crane added 14 points each as the Rangers shot a miserable 31% on 25 of 80 field goal attempts. Regis played the last four minutes and forty seconds of the game without so much as a free throw.

REGIS GOLF

Under the competent tutelage of Reverend Richard F. Bocklage, the Regis College golf team has consistently improved over the years. Having won a number of difficult matches last year, the prospects for this season were even better. With one of the largest number of candidates out for the team, the competition should be closer than it was last year and this should obviously produce a better team.

The loss of Gary Potter via January graduation will be felt, but it is expected that any of a number of men could replace him. Turning in consistently low scores in early practice rounds were Chuck Chalberg, Dennis Driscoll, and Mark Whitaker.

SKI TEAM

The ski team, in its second year under Coach Meta Andel, showed spirit even if it did not come up with an impressive record. For despite the discouraging lack of snow, team members under the relentless prodding of Captain Mark Earley worked out regularly while waiting for the snow and the first race.

The schedule, too, worked against Regis skiers. For the best meets occurred either during exam week or at distances too great to be traveled. But despite all this, the Regis men did enter some meets, always coming out respectably though never sensationally, and did sponsor (with the help of the Siger Ski Club) the first annual Siger Invitational Ski Meet on February 17 at Peak 8 Breckenridge. Team members also instructed club beginners and helped with the club's intramural ski race. Considering the setbacks they encountered, Regis skiers had quite a successful year.

STUDENT LEADERSHIP CONFERENCE

On September fourth, fifth and sixth, the Student Senate Leadership Conference, held at the Craggs Hotel in Estes Park, Colorado, brought thirty-five student leaders together with representatives from the faculty and administration for conferences and workshop discussions concerning the many aspects of Regis life.

Student interest in the program was overwhelming considering that those students participating had to cut short their summer vacations and pay their own expenses.

The discussions, which were informal, were enthusiastically received, and the sharp, pointed, and pertinent questions of the conference delegates opened many interesting areas of discussion. The range of topics considered in the discussions and speeches included, communications, publicity, athletics, publications, student government, tuition and finances, freshman initiation, student discipline, school spirit, the aims of a liberal education, and the future of Regis.

The planning and organization of the Conference was ably executed by a Student Senate Committee consisting of Ed Feulner (chairman), Jim Schmit, Dan Dalpes, Dennis Dalpes, Joe Fanganello, and Dennis Lawler.

FRESHMAN INITIATION

The class of '66 arrived on the Regis Campus excited and confused. Soon they found themselves swamped with schedules and names. During the Orientation Speech given by Dean Hoewischer, they were warned of their future expectations. This year's freshmen involved themselves in discussing the purpose of a liberal arts college with the aid of Cardinal Newman's Idea of a University. With the termination of the first week, the freshmen proceeded to register for classes.

The class of '66 initiated several new programs of retribution on the upperclassmen. These programs helped foster a united spirit among all classes and shall remain a lasting memory. The freshmen of course, participated in the usual picnics and entertaining programs planned for their benefit. Their strong spirits were rewarded by a gala Frosh Frolic and many binding friendships.

It's that time of year when bellboys are in style.

Gee, some guys have all THE friends.

FRESHMEN FROLIC

The strains of enchantment still linger in the hearts of many a Regis students they recall with fond remembrance the annual Freshman Frolic, highlighted by the fabulous Jimmy Dorsey Orchestra, under the direction of Lee Castle. To enhance the "unforgettability" of the evening, the dance was held at the Pinehurst Country Club.

The program culminated in the presentation of the freshman awards and the crowning of the Freshman Sweetheart. The Most Humorous award was presented to Dan O'Neal; Most Cooperative to Ed Connolly, and Most Spirited to Mike O'Donnell. Reigning as Freshman Queen is Linda Barry, with her attendants, Wally Gunn, Anne Villepigue, Connie Brown, Lindy Lancaster, and Ginny West. It is to be hoped that the future holds in store for Regis many more such highly successful dances.

HALLOWEEN MADCAP

This year's Halloween Madcap, the annual Halloween dance sponsored by the Brothers of Iota Chapter of Alpha Delta Gamma Fraternity, was held at the Denver Turnverein Club on the night of October 31. Again this year, the dance lived up to its advance billing as being the school's best outlet for releasing pent-up emotions and exhibiting suppressed desires.

Dennis Banner, along with Pat Eicker, had the monumental task of judging the contestants and awarding the cash prizes to the winners. Breaking the tradition of the past two years, somebody finally managed to relieve Carl Sullivan of the first prize honors. This year, because of an exceptional make-up job, Mike Sheahan and his date, disguised as Ozark hillbillies, won the first prize.

Frank Rino and his Twist Band provided the music and the Brothers of Alpha Delta Gamma provided the refreshments—cider and doughnuts.

Has anyone seen my date?

Thay now, you're kinda cute too.

PRESENTATION BALL

"...if you know Suzie like I know Suzie..."

On Friday evening, November Sixteenth, the Brothers of the Sigma Chapter of Alpha Kappa Psi presented the sixteenth annual "Presentation Ball" at the beautiful and elegant Pinehurst Country Club. Accompanied by the music of the Ray Kemp Orchestra, the six lovely queen candidates were introduced to the appreciative crowd.

Representing Alpha Kappa Psi was the attractive, sophisticated Miss Karen Clark who was escorted by Mike Sheahan. The Italian Club's candidate, escorted by Gary Palidori, was charming and beautiful Miss Fran Coloroso. The Irish Regis Association presented as their candidate vivacious, blonde Miss Sue Zeyen who was escorted by Phil Farley. The Benchwarmers' candidate was the sparkling, cute Miss Cathie O'Neill, escorted by Doug Cullan. Lovely Miss Pat McEvoy, escorted by Richard Ostberg, was the Denver Club's candidate. Alpha Delta Gamma offered as their candidate the elegantly beautiful Ann Koeffler who was escorted by Ed Coughlin.

With all of the lovely candidates officially presented to their perspective subjects, the official campaign which would terminate in the coronation of a new Queen of Regis began.

What do you mean I'm overweight and under-educated?

But Fred, there is no German Regis Association on campus.

But it's not my fault the johns are crowded.

Yeh. You're just the type that won't buy your date a corsage for the dance.

The play, Murder in the Cathedral, was presented by the Regis College Speech Department under the direction of Mr. Reginald Bain on November 1, 2, and 3. Presented in a modernistic arena setting consisting of three lighted arches, the play depicted the martyrdom of St. Thomas a'Becket.

CORONATION BALL

Did you hear that, Patty? You lost.

The conclusion of a two week campaign on the part of six lovely young ladies and their sponsoring organizations, and of an agonizing three day wait on the part of the entire student body was reached at the Coronation Ball held at the Malibu Motor Hotel on December 8. The annual affair, sponsored by Alpha Delta Gamma Fraternity, featured the music of the Glen Stocking Orchestra. Over two hundred couples gathered in the Grand Ballroom of the Malibu to receive their souvenir mugs from the realistically red nosed Santa Claus who greeted everyone at the door, to try to protect the mugs from loss, to shout "What's that" at the floating candles which decorated the tables, and to cheer for or be good sports with their favorite candidate after the announcement of her victory or defeat.

The climax of the evening was the coronation of the 1962-63 Queen of Regis, Miss Sue Zeyen, by the retiring queen Miss Andrea Ruscio.

She is rather affectionate, isn't she.

You mean you accuse little Ol' me of stealing your mug?

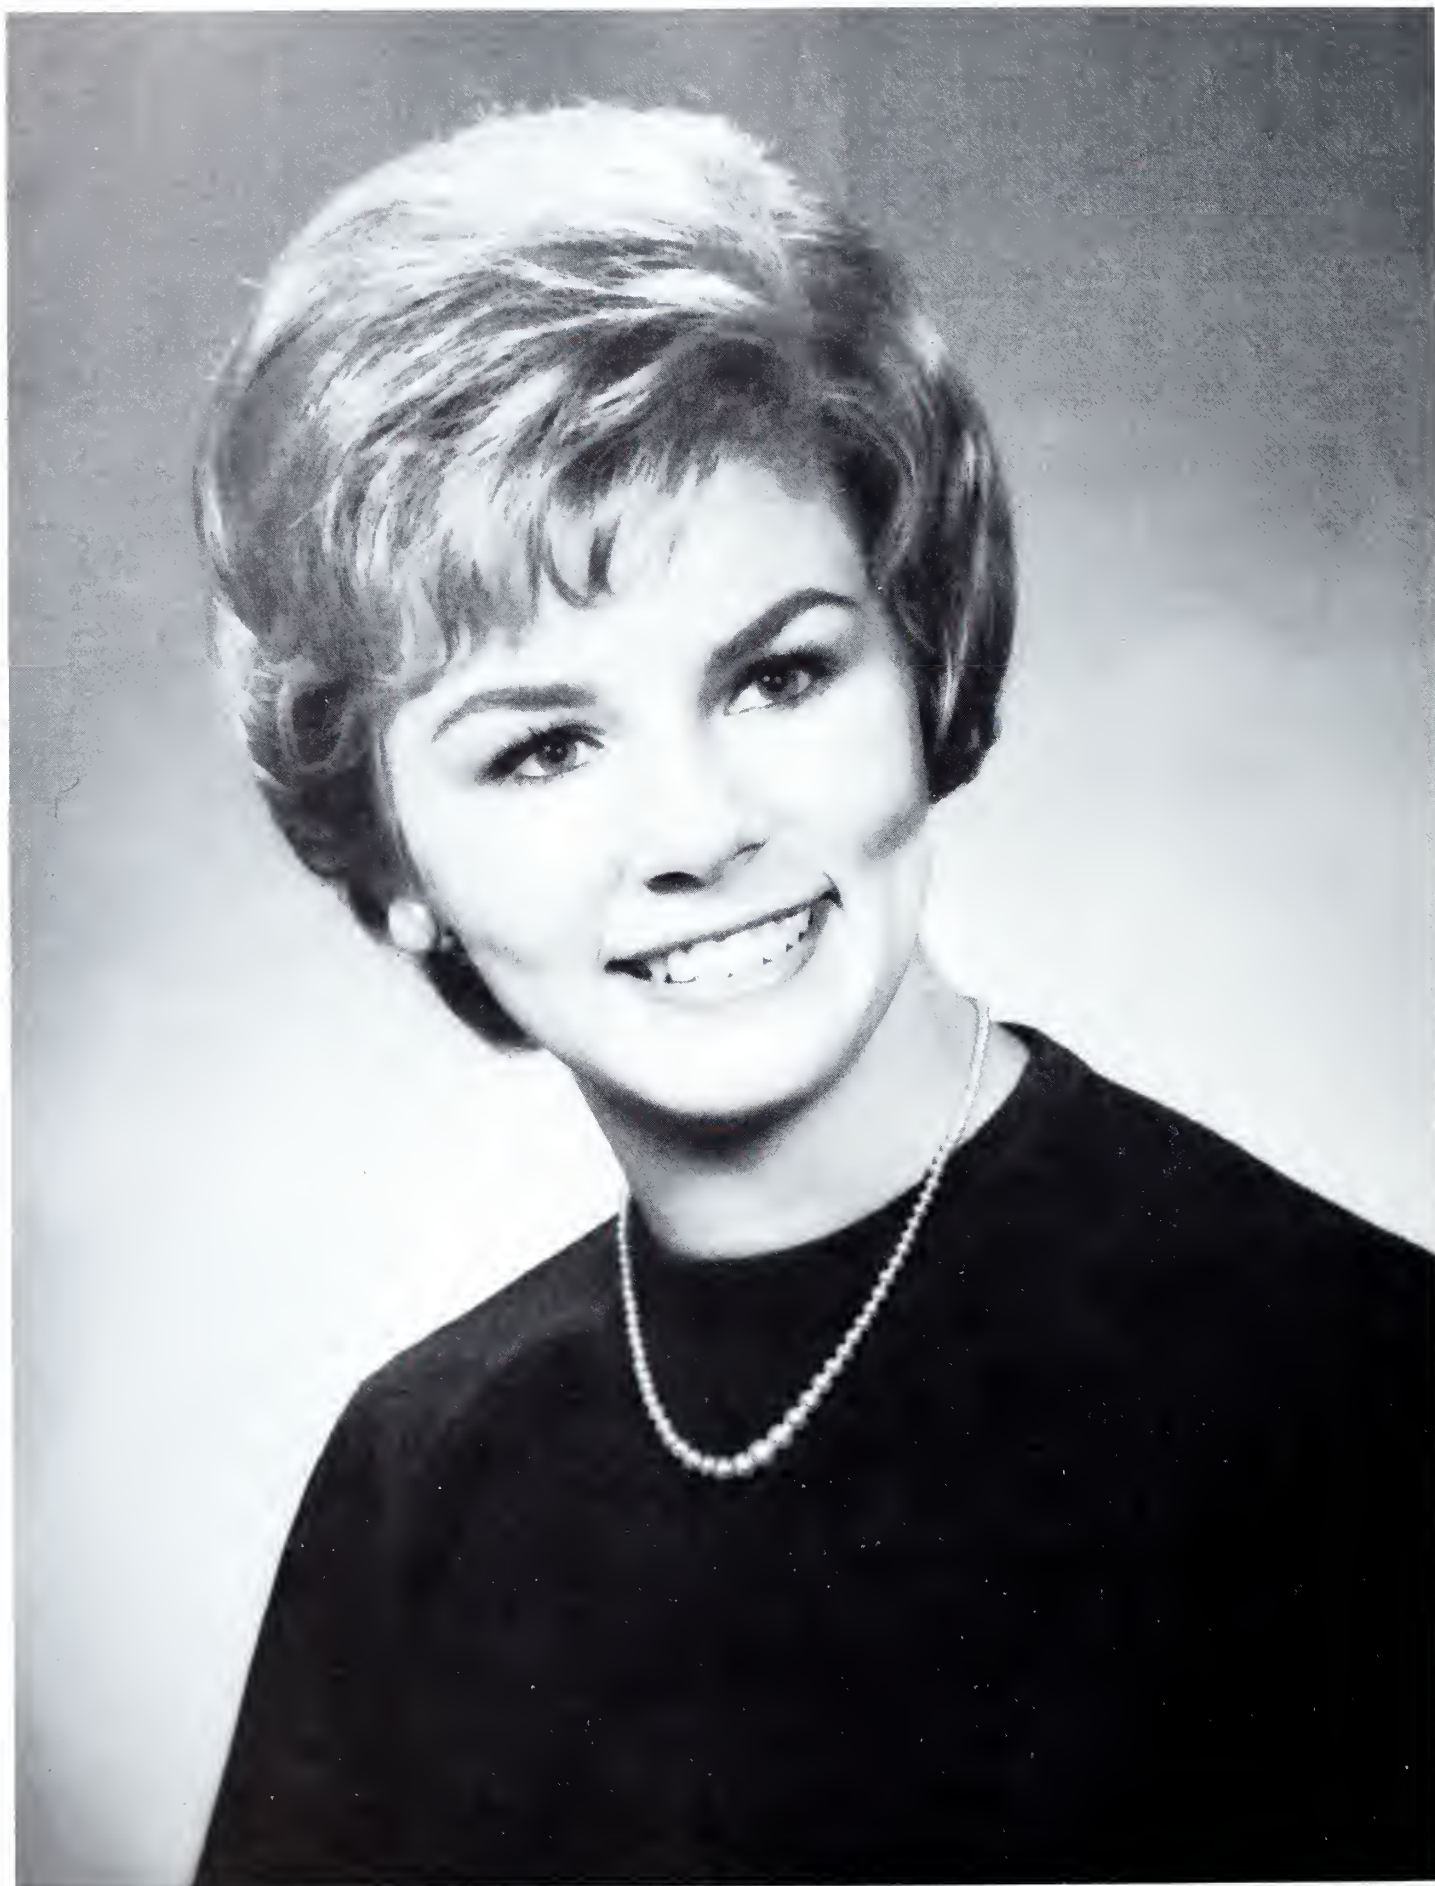

Guard your mug, here she comes again!

If that guy throws paper in my horn once more, I'll take my orchestra and leave.

The "big game" sees Regis men winning!

MISS SUE ZEYEN

THE QUEEN OF REGIS

On December Eighth, at the climax of the Sixteenth Annual Coronation Ball, Miss Andrea Ruscio, retiring Queen of Regis, crowned her successor, the lovely Miss Sue Zeyen.

The 5'7" blonde, a twenty year old college junior, is pursuing an English major. Sue, a native of Flossmoor, Illinois, is an active sports enthusiast who enjoys skiing, swimming, horse-back riding and boys. Sue lists travelling and reading as her other favorite pastimes. Marriage plays no part in the immediate future plans of our Queen who is looking forward to a teaching career following her graduation.

CHRISTMAS FESTIVAL

December 13

The second annual Regis College Christmas Festival was successfully held on the evening of December 14. Following the singing of carols by the Denver area parochial high schools, an inspiring sermon was delivered by Very Reverend John J. Danagher, C.M., rector of St. Thomas Seminary. Solemn Benediction immediately followed the sermon, and the crowd, newly filled with the Christmas spirit, adjourned to the Student Center for refreshments.

This second annual Christmas Festival truly accomplished its purpose in conveying to the people the true spirit of Christmas. Under the direction of Very Reverend Monsignor Richard C. Hiester, the massed choirs performed in a spirit of excellence which, blended with the other events of the evening, instilled in those in attendance the spiritual meaning of Christmas and detracted from the material aspects for at least this short time.

The Second Annual Christmas Festival was again a great success as the respect and the joy of the season were projected from all that were present.

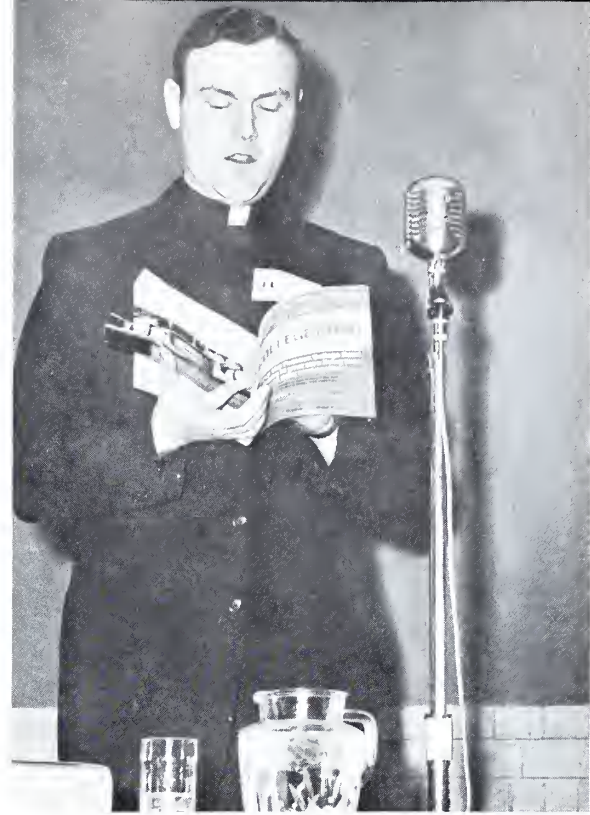

The Christmas Festival was brought to a close with Benediction.

COLLEGE BOWL

January 13

The eventful grudge match between Regis and LHC had to happen. But to the amazement of many, it was in the form of an intelligence match. Choosing four "experts" in different fields, the teams met in the Student Center on January 13 to answer the questions of an original College Bowl questionnaire. LHC grabbed an early lead, only to relinquish it to Regis after the half-time. LHC rallied in the closing moments to tie Regis at 415 points. Sheila Sullivan and Rich Ostberg were the outstanding players for the day, and an outstanding day it was, for no winner was declared.

Fr. Teeling, the official, directed the operations from a good distance.

Sheila Sullivan and Co. concentrate on what happened in 1492.

The "fans" were surprised to find out that they didn't know any of the answers.

Regis, enjoying a comfortable lead for the moment, takes time to relax while LHC scrambles for an answer.

Neither team seems to respond to a "toss-up" question.

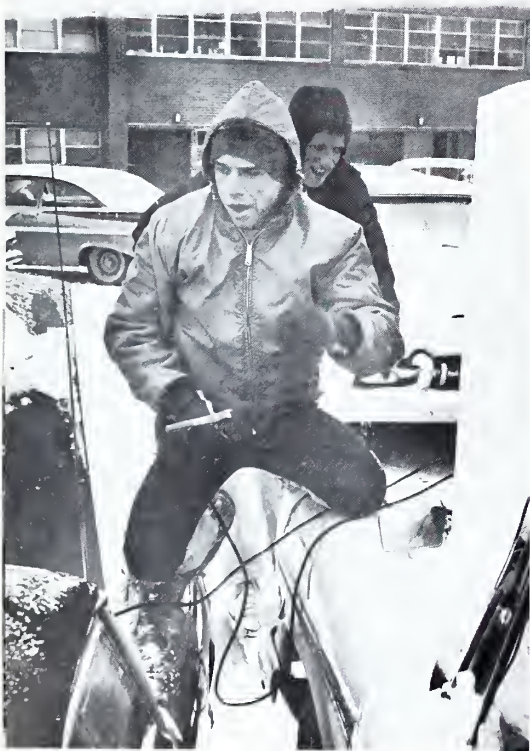

WINTER

You ought to see him with two beers in his mouth.

Many veterans come to Regis with mature ideas to set high ideals.

Guess Who??

... and I told them we were out of liquor.

This, ladies and gentlemen, is a U.S. Marine.

STUDENT RETREAT

January 29-31

The annual student retreat was held on the Regis campus January 29-31. All full-time Catholic students of Regis who had not made a retreat prior to this time were required to make this retreat. Fr. Harris, S. J., gave the freshmen-sophomore retreat in the Student Chapel. Fr. Schuet, S. J., was the retreat master for the juniors and seniors whose retreat was given in the fieldhouse.

On the first two evenings of the retreat, Fr. Schuet conducted a question box period. Only a handful of people attended, but this did not dampen the spirits of anyone present. Many topics were discussed relative to religious, social, and political activities.

Fr. Casey, S. J., obtained two movies which were shown the first night. One film dealt with the Jesuit Brothers as a vocation for young men. The second film concerned the Jesuit Missions in Honduras.

The retreat was concluded with benediction Wednesday afternoon. The students then dispersed to begin to put into practice what they had been taught during the course of the retreat.

Walter F. Harris, S.J. emphasizes the need to lead virtuous lives always.

Retreatants are found in adoration of the Blessed Sacrament during Benediction at the closed retreat.

Following the days instruction, students found ample opportunities afforded them by the retreat masters for personal conference.

Harry Klocker, S.J. spent more than the time allotted for the question and answer period at the Senior closed retreat at Sedalia. It was the last college retreat for the departing seniors.

Freshmen and Sophomores leave the chapel with the idea of making this a good retreat.

LECTURE

The sixth annual Regis College visiting scholar Lecture Series featured six outstanding lecturers who spoke on various problems which affect our society today. Subjects ranging from Communism to an analysis of novels, from economics to a discussion of liturgical development in the Roman Catholic Church, provided invaluable views for the liberal arts student. The burden of arranging these lectures fell largely on the shoulders of Father Harry R. Klocker, S.J., who most certainly provided a series which this college can be proud of, and this was greatly attested to by the majority of students and guests attending the lectures. It would almost seem as if Father Klocker possesses a special foresight when the timeliness of the lectures is considered. Dr. Bouscaren's talk on the importance of making allies behind the Iron Curtain came at the highlight of the recent Cuban crisis, and Father Howell's lecture on liturgy was given immediately preceding the opening of the Ecumenical Council. The aptness of the Lecture Series to provide talks on current events stimulated the intellectual curiosity of the Regis students. As a special added feature, the Lecture Series sponsored a jazz concert. The concert was presented on April 2nd by the Colorado University Jazz Ensemble, and provided a completely satisfying finesse to a well-rounded series.

REVEREND WILLIAM T. NOON, S.J., (not pictured) on March 6th delivered a lecture which he entitled, "Slender Abstracts and The Backward Look." A respected critic of James Joyce, Father Noon examined three autobiographical novels dealing with the problems of rebellious young men: The Way of All Flesh, A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man and The Catcher and the Rye. Father Noon for the last few years has been on the faculty of the Jesuit Philosophate at Shrub Oak. He has earned a wide literary reputation for his articles in learned journals, and for his book Joyce and Aquinas which was published by the Yale Press.

REVEREND CLIFFORD HOWELL, S.J., considered the great possibility that after the Ecumenical Council the Scriptures that appear in the Mass will be said in English. His lecture was well received because of its timeliness in relation and respect to the Council. Father Howell, an expert on liturgy, is from Rugby, England and currently is lecturing for the Gregorian Institute of America.

Dr. Anthony Bouscaren lectures on obtaining allies behind the Iron Curtain.

DR. ANTHONY BOUSCAREN presented an outstanding lecture on the role the United States must play in winning pro-Red nations to our side. "We must stop trying to get along with the Communists and start trying to get along with the majorities they enslave." Dr. Bouscaren was extremely well aware of the fact that our strongest allies are behind the Iron Curtain.

Liturgical development highlighted the lecture of Father Clifford Howell, S.J.

SERIES

MR. JEREMIAH J. J. BARRY has a varied background in the business world, having broadened his experience in business, market, economic, and financial research analysis, and forecasting. He has been with the Martin Company for over two years, dealing in part with market and business analysis on military space systems. Mr. Barry emphasized that the entire national economy affects the defense and security program of the United States. Through a series of graphs, Mr. Barry illustrated the relationships between the rise of the economy and the increase in defense systems.

Mr. Jeremiah Barry stresses the relationship between the security of our country and our national economy.

Mr. Henry Steele Commager holds a seminar discussion on the field of history.

MR. HENRY STEELE COMMAGER, professor on leave from Amherst College, held an informal lecture and discussion period on the Regis campus. Mr. Commager is a noted historian and is greatly admired for his work in this field. He emphasized that the historians before the 20th century were concerned only with fact and seemed to ignore historical theory. With the coming of the new era though, American historians began developing various theories, many of which are held today.

Dr. Edward Fuller delivered the final lecture on the advancement of science.

DR. EDWARD C. FULLER, professor of chemistry at Beloit College, came to the Regis campus under the auspices of Rho Chi Sigma fraternity and the chemistry department. Dr. Fuller is the chairman of the American Chemical Society's Division of Chemical Education for 1963. Before moving to Beloit in 1953, Dr. Fuller was the president of Bard College, an undergraduate unit of Columbia University. Dr. Fuller has spent many years in the field of scientific education. In his lecture, he discussed the relationships between science and man's problems, both materially and intellectually.

SKI TRIPS

With the coming of the first snow, Regents cast their eyes toward the mountains, hoping that this time the snows will pack and the slopes will be ready for skiing. The weekend arrives, and on Saturday morning, buses and ski topped cars head for Aspen, Winter Park, Arapahoe, Vail, or Loveland. The long ride, the hunger pains, and the excitement of conquering the slopes await the Regis men. The chairlift line is long, the slopes are jammed, but the Regis man somehow seems to get in a few runs for the day. The ride back to Denver is long and quiet, but the Holy Cat and the Red Ram make excellent "pit-stops." He is tired and hungry, but he looks to the next Saturday as his skis are put away for the week.

But really . . . we ski!

POLITICS

The Student Senate deserves a large share of the credit for this year's changes in student life. Newly introduced into the extracurricular program was the Student Leadership Conference and a somewhat scholasticized format for Freshman Initiation.

Sophomore and Junior class members who advocated positions representing their fellow class members in the Senate fought out their contest in early October. Following the winning leads of Tom Fay and Jim Springer, Freshman Ed Connolly organized the Brown & Gold Party which completely swept the frosh elections.

These were just a warm-up, though, for the Executive Board elections in February. The Ranger Party, led by Jim Dowd and Mike Sheahan, came up against the Key Party, with Bert Liebmann and Jim Springer heading its list. Once the campaign was under way, the majority of the students vacillated between the two parties; no one wanted to declare himself. The "Night of the Debate" settled many minds. Liebmann and Dowd came to odds on the major issues of the campaign before a crowd of about two hundred, including Father Ryan. The points advanced by these party representatives left little doubt in the minds of the voters as to whom and what they were voting for.

The closeness of the campaign was indicated by the split in the party members who made up the 1963-1964 Executive Board. Representing the Ranger Party were Jim Dowd, Mike Sheahan, and Mike Clark; from the Key were Mike Marotta, Mike Turley, Bill Convery, and Joe Lane.

The new board looks forward to increased communication with the administration, greater emphasis on student participation in activities, and the continued development of the Ranger spirit.

Ed Fuelner, veteran politician, leaves his Presidential office up for grabs.

I will buy seven shovels and fill that gravel pit.

Jim Springer, Junior Vice President candidate, rallies for votes.

The long hours, timely talks, and ups and downs are put to the test.

Pull left . . .
Pull right . . .
Let me outa here!

Cigars, pencils, cookies, and fire trucks highlighted the Executive Board campaign.

I promise to go through the proper channels. I do.

1963 INAUGURAL BALL

February 17

On February 17, the 1962-63 Executive Board presented the Third Annual Inaugural Ball. Held at the Brown Palace Hotel, this event climaxed two weeks of campaigning between the Ranger and Key Parties. The outgoing officers, the incoming officers, and the General Assembly were toasted at the Inaugural Dinner preceding the dance. Music was provided by Glen Stocking and his Orchestra.

Yeh, I'm a dirty old man.

As soon as I change clothes, I'll fill the parking lot!

Now you-all, the next hombre rambling down . . .

If you think I'm good on the dance floor, you ought to see me on the Basketball court.

These Chemistry majors always analyze someone's drink.

You have guts, showing up with that girl!

Someone has to smile around here.

May 6

RANGER

Have a good time; when you leave, be sure to leave Regis green.

Ranger Day most appropriately commenced with the celebration of High Mass in the Student Chapel. The College Choir, sponsored by the I.R.A., was in full voice and added immensely to the spiritual atmosphere to open the day. Immediately following Mass, the students retreated to the Student Center for a brunch.

Reverend Richard F. Ryan, S.J., President of Regis College, then officially opened the Ranger Day activities. The students then entered into the day's activities with great vigor. In the track meet, the Fat Man's Race was won by Jack O'Connor. The I.R.A. pulled through with their second consecutive victory for over-all points for the meet. There was continuous gambling in the Student Center with the members of AKPsi acting as professional gamblers. A push ball in the football field pushed the contestants around more than they pushed it. During this entire time, hot rod enthusiasts were putting around in go-karts in the parking lot.

Then came the "real" entertainment of the day. The Taylor Trio, under the sponsorship of Rho Chi Sigma Fraternity, succeeded in "bringing down the rafters" for the second straight year. Their music and jokes are still remembered by all who attended.

PUT-PUT.....put.

Don't know where in the hell it came from, but let's get it outta here.

DAY

PLUNK.

Yeh, she came along with the hat.

A dinner on the lawn followed the entertainment and then a talent show which displayed the better side of some of the Regis students. Following the talent show, the entire congregation moved to the Student Center once more. A dance, sponsored by ADG, was held until the stars were high in the sky.

Those leaving Ranger Day were so tired that they could hardly move, but they knew that it was a day that they would long remember.

Hit the target—drown a sucker.

THE WEEKEND

"T. G. I. F."

With this famous expression, Regians drop their books and head for the Epic. More exuberant collegians take the long awaited walk to Slim's. With the quick arrival of Friday night, phone booths in both dorms are jammed, showers packed, and newly laundered shirts sought. The Rendezvous in Boulder, the Rathskeller in Denver, the movies downtown, or just a quiet evening at a local "Woman's" college; these are just a few of the weekend pleasures of the Regis man. Other favorite frequencies of the Rangerites are the Saturday night basketball games, the Sunday night movies, or just a night at Billy's Inn. The weekend comes and goes, another week of school arrives, and a tired Ranger sits down to the books.

I'll just put it here, so no one will find it.

The Benchwarmers ride again.

This is what is known as "the big stare-down."

Please get off my foot!

I'd wait and pop it in the morning.

Yeh, I'm six-beer Sue, what's it to you?

Who invited you?

Regis swings again . . .

EXPRESSIONS

Regis College is an institution made up of students. The student body is made up of human elements, faces. The expression of these faces are typical of the Regis campus. They can be called expressions of the personality. These expressions, laughter, frustration, anxiety, hope, depression, relaxation, are the essence of Regis. A college cannot be called a college without the human element. The individual makes a college what it is, what it should be. Just as Regis is a college, it is home to many students. Without the human element, a home withers and dies. Yet Regis lives and flourishes, a fact to which these expressions will readily attest. Since Regis is a mobile society, growing in structure and stature every year, the men of Regis must grow with it. The men of Regis are mobile too, as the human element changes and changes, making men grow and flourish.

What! Me worry?

Yeh, I'm a Frosh . . .
Sorry . . .

OUCH!!

Help! Howie, Help!

I feel so funny . . . so dam . . .

Pilot to Navigator . . . come in . . .

Open your eyes . . . face reality!

DORM LIFE . . .

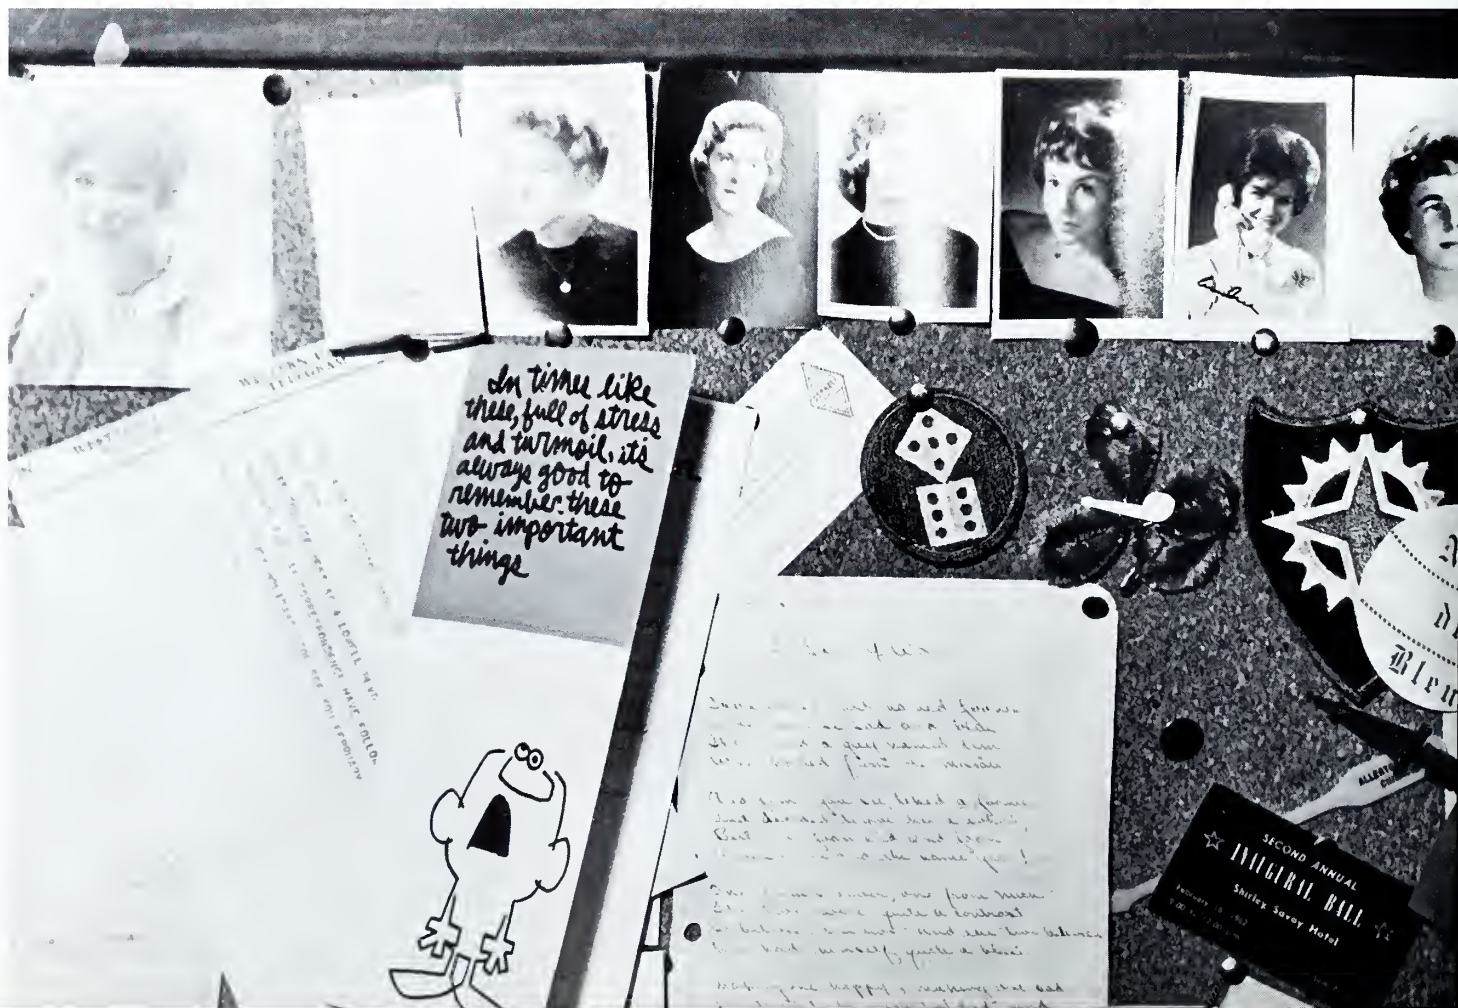

Dorm life at Regis may be described in many words: joyful, frustrating, boring, livable, unbearable, home, and many more stretching from one extreme to the other. But when a man must make it his home for nine months, he must adjust to it, no matter what his opinion may be. If he uses his ingenuity, the student need never be unoccupied. The Student Center is always alive with laughter, the library is always full of books, and the pool room is full of people. And if all else fails, he can always recline in the privacy of his own room.

. . . and some rooms are kept immaculate.

Regis could be called a "Liberal Arts" college.

College men have been known to have a few girls on the hook, but . . .

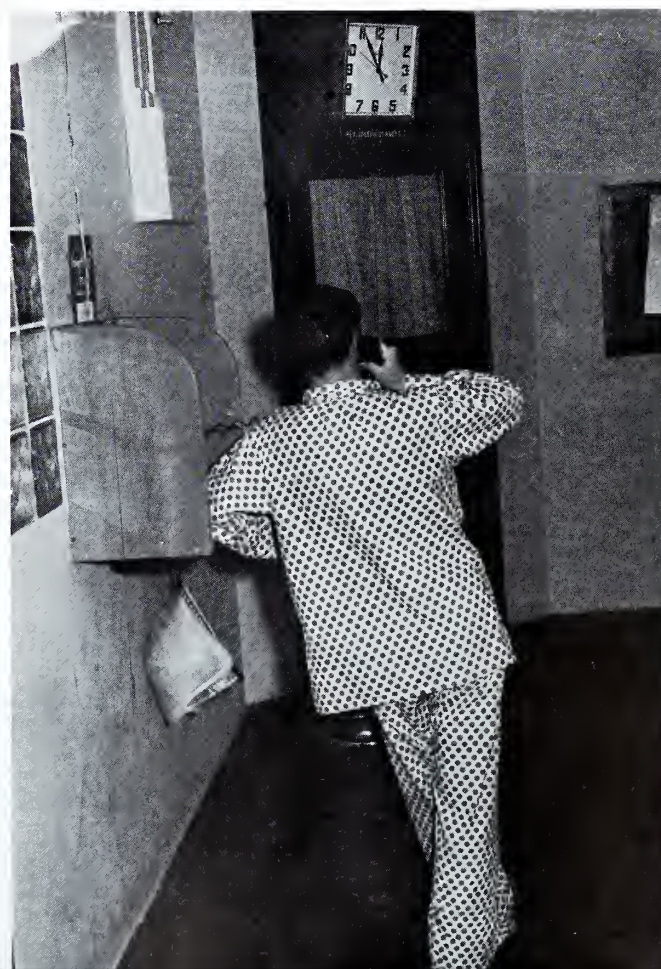

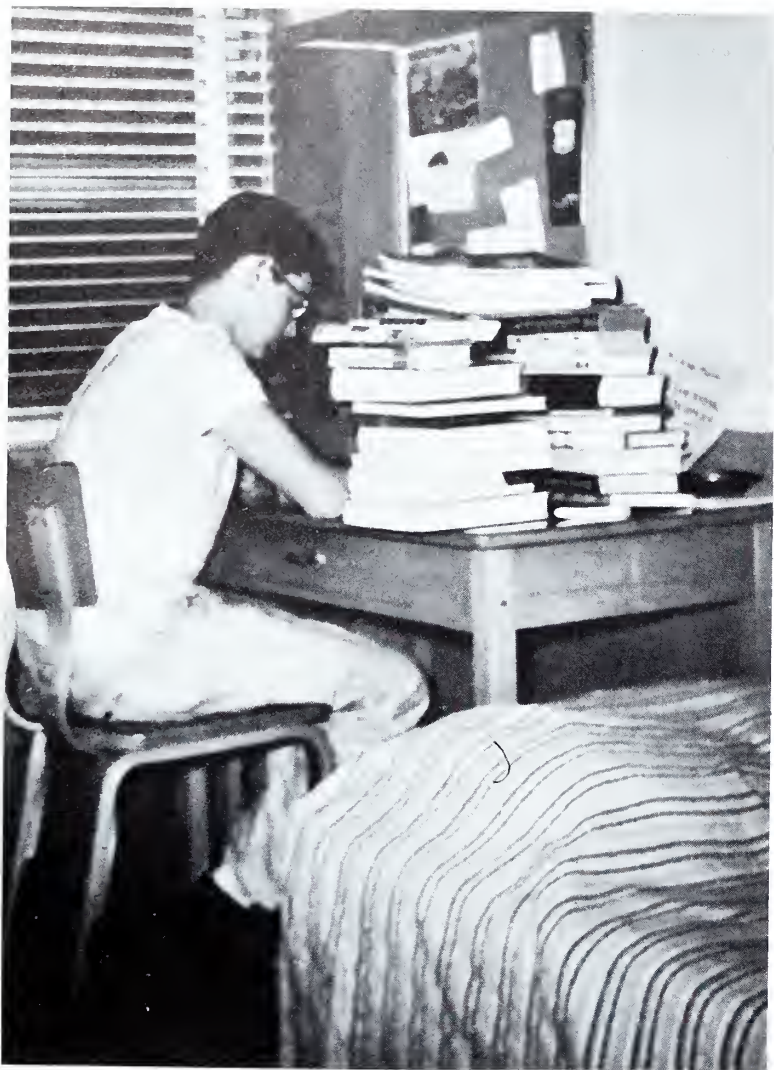

. . . and here is one of JFD III meeting JFK I.

Now . . . debit left . . . credit right . . . no . . .

Now what the hell do you want at this hour?

I have a feeling that someone is looking over my shoulder.

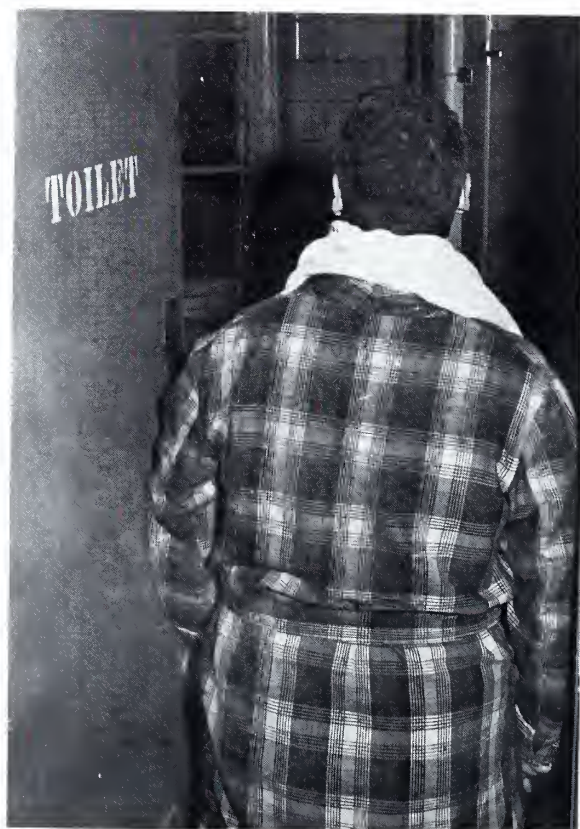

Now that I've bought my books, I can start dropping courses.

If I'd known you were coming, I'd have tapped a keg.

Mike Bannon takes time out to see if the books belong to him or not.

Because 5-Day deodorant pads don't work, that's why!

Because it's my board, they are my cards, and you are in my room, that's why!

You would think that we are served like this every night of the week.

Regis men prepare for the business world.

Regis offers excellent facilities for the man on campus. With Carroll Hall filled with mature upperclassmen, and O'Connell Hall filled with enthusiastic underclassmen, Regis will expand, adding a new dormitory, to be called DeSmet Hall.

The man on campus will always remember the nights at Slim's, the afternoon at F.A.C., and the steak on Saturday night. The eternal triangle, from the dorm to Loyola to the Center to the dorm, will always be remembered by the man on campus.

... AT REGIS COLLEGE

RANGER

But where are we going to hide it??

Nothing like a little Homer and sunshine . . . and a little beer.

"I'll huff and I'll puff . . ."

Sorry Dick, you are campused.

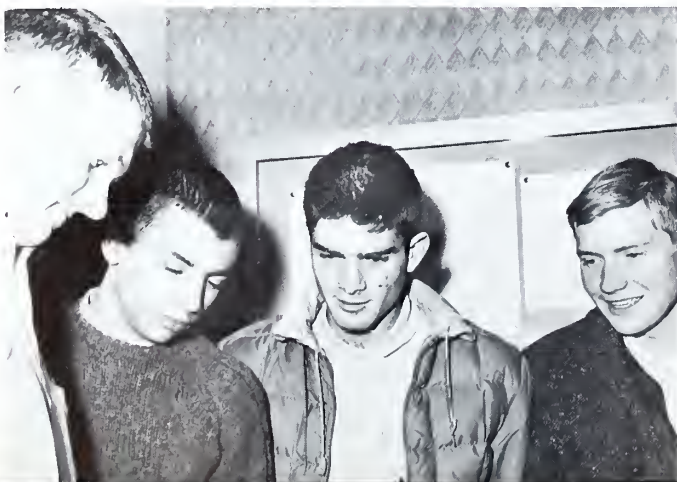

Can't anyone have any privacy around here?

Find the "Senior Bowl Queen," and she's yours.

Yeh, that's a wheel . . . push it backwards!

RAMBLINGS

"Say something to the Student Body, Ed."

If I don't get a date this weekend, I'll kill myself.

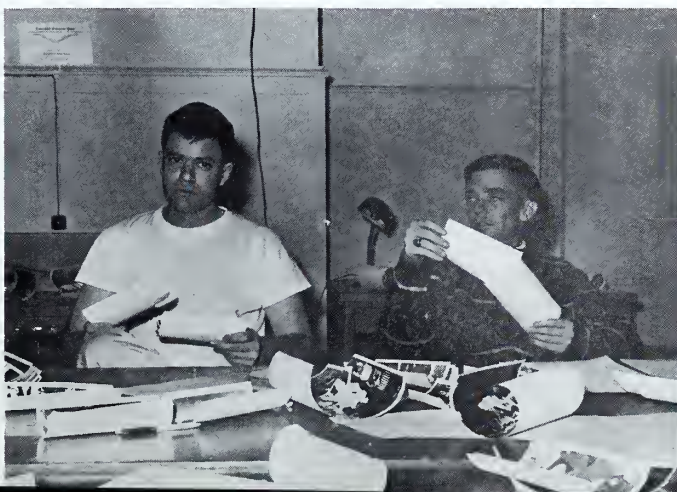

I tell you, Ed, I'm sick of it all.

Most people play baseball in Berkeley Park, not Berkeley Lake.

There's always a way to sneak out.

Oh . . . Ok!

—Now . . . man is prepared. Now . . . he can search for new horizons, confident of his development, and confident that the future shines brightly for him. And Regis also is confident . . . confident in the challenge that lies just within her reach.

OVER THE LAST HORIZON . . .

"And we would like you to give considerable thought as to whether you could possibly accept the job as Editor-in-Chief of . . ." These words haunt me today as something very unreal, unbelievable, and undeserving, and yet even as I write these words, I am realizing the completion of a project which loomed all too heavy over me only a few months ago. Oh . . . how well I remember the hours spent while working on my summer job, wondering just how I was going to face up to this responsibility when I returned to Regis. But, ignorant as I was, I failed to understand and recognize that many forces would soon be present to lend a helping hand. Very often the credit is swamped upon a few individuals, however the life of this RANGER is a culmination of the resources of many individuals united together to produce the publication created for you, the student body.

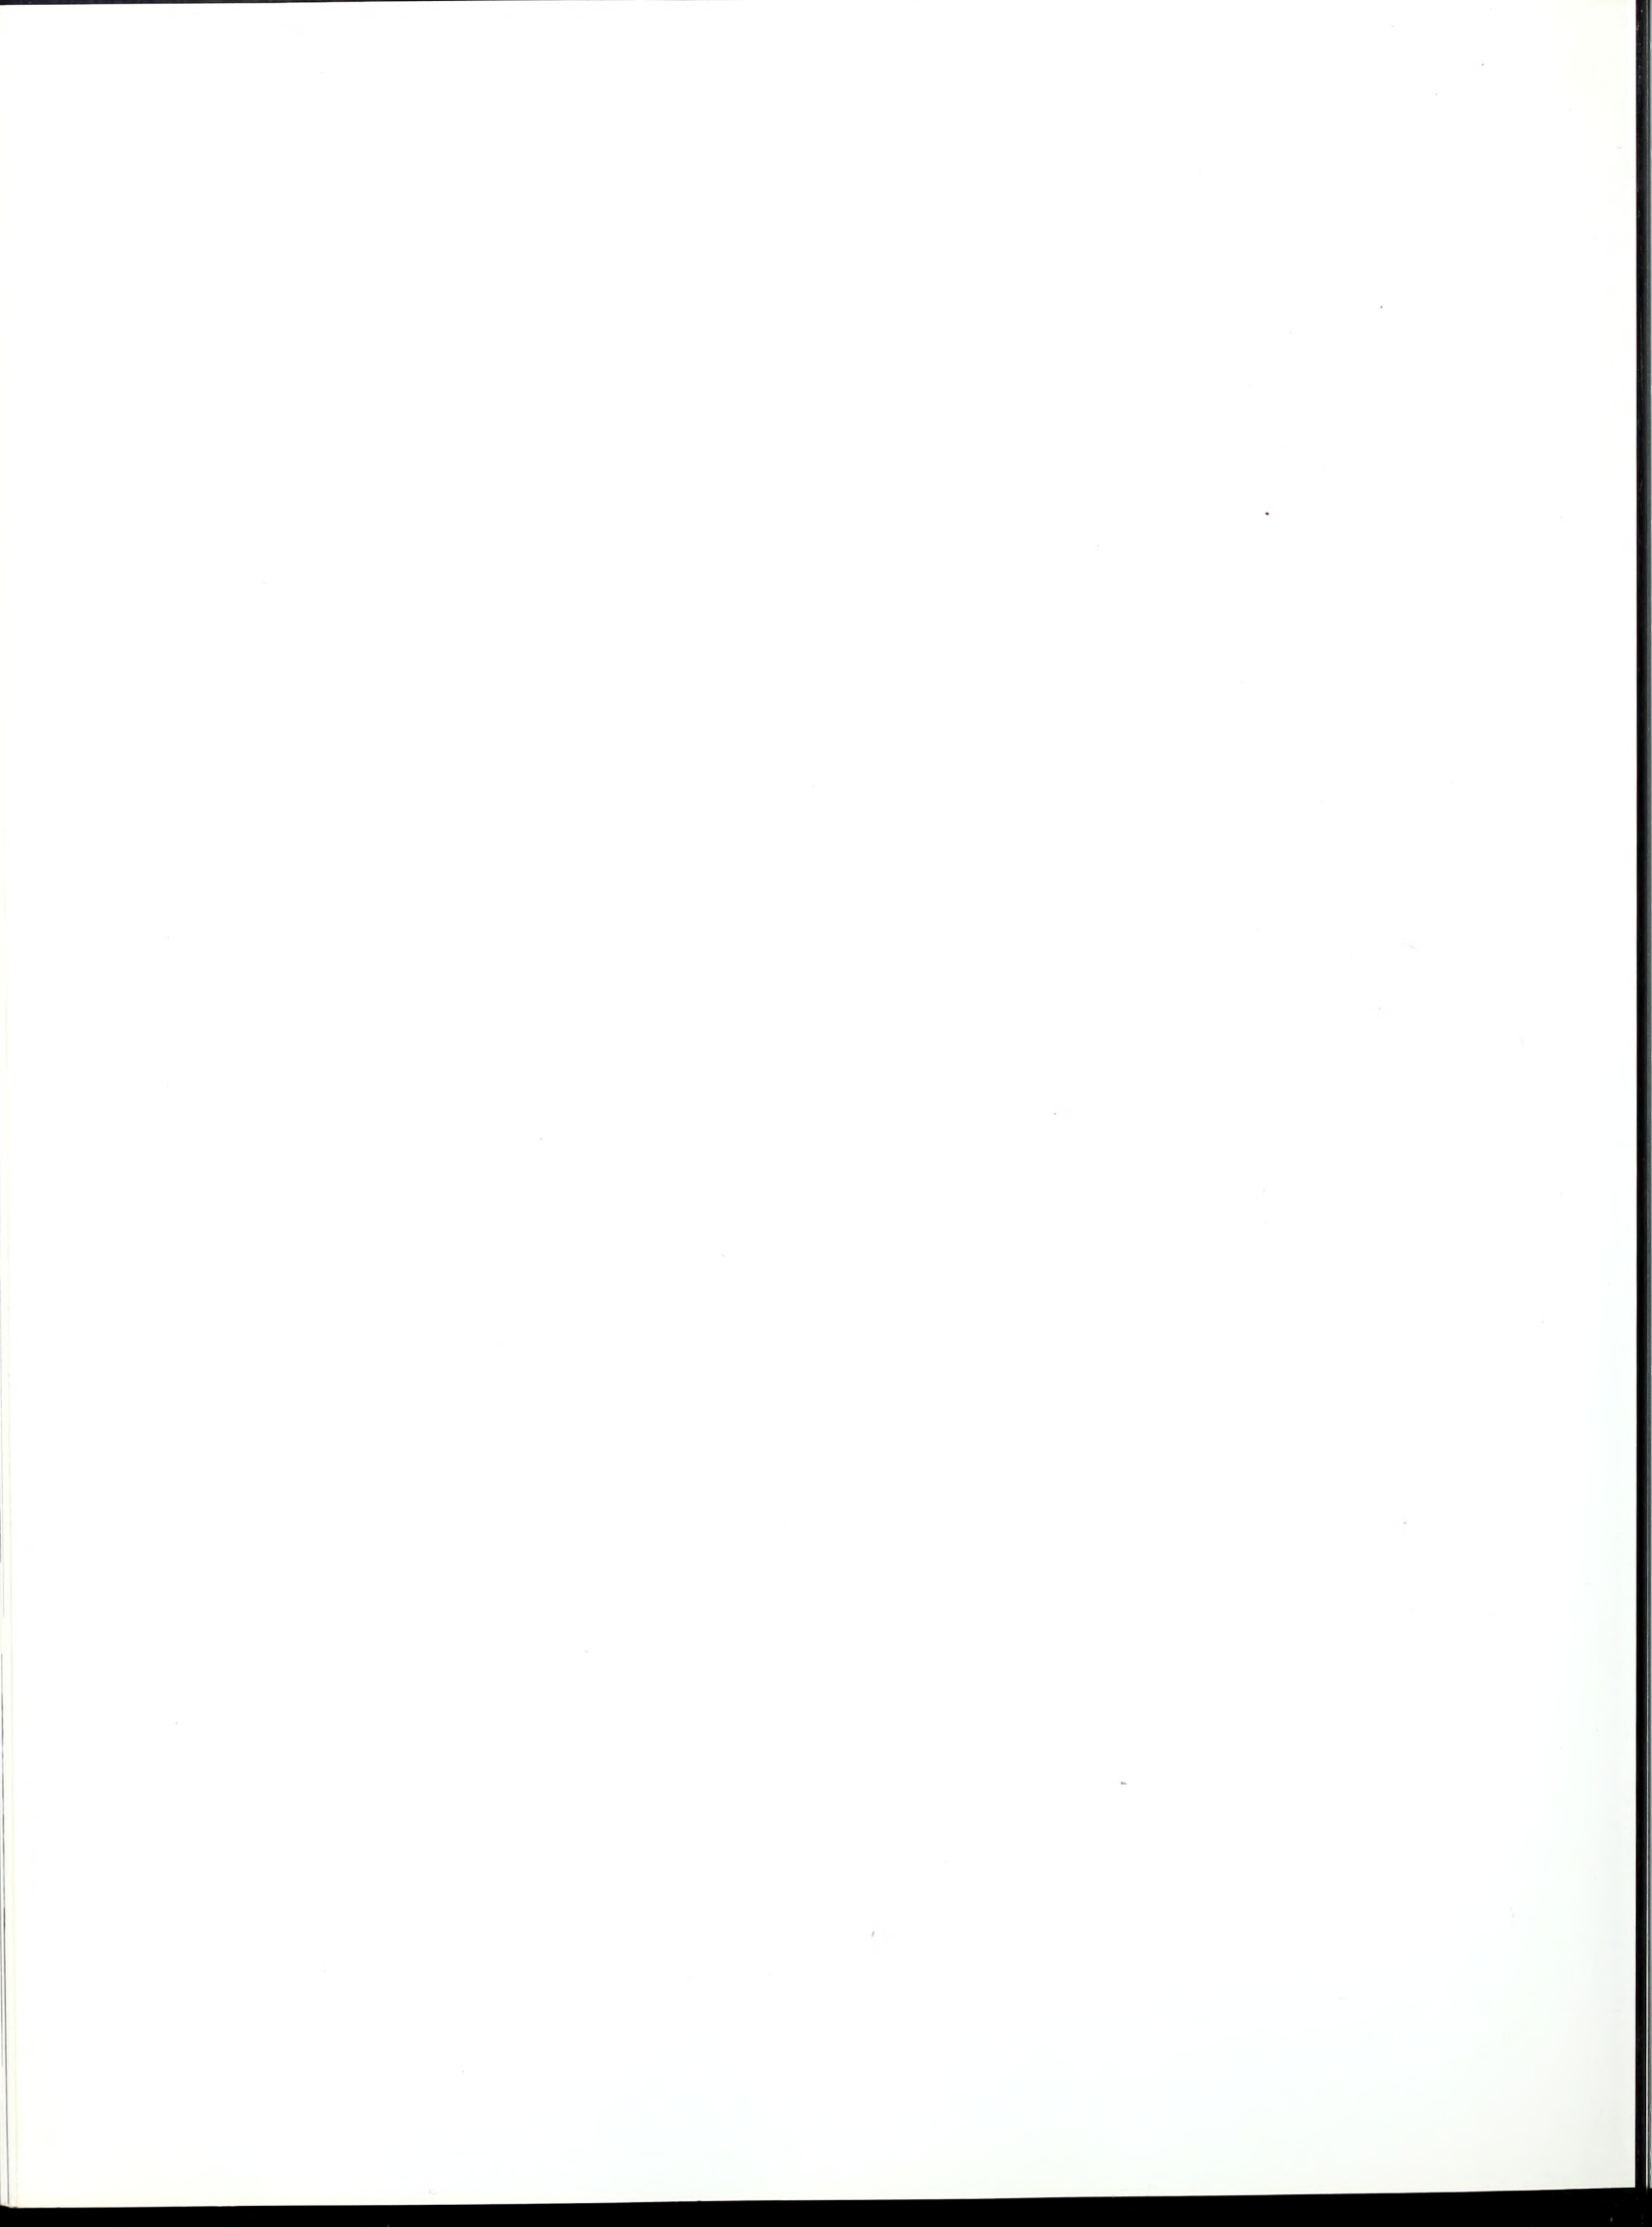

Who can forget the horror of the nights immediately preceding deadlines? Janitors eventually succumbed to the ritual of sweeping up "chain-smoked" cigarette butts. Staff members conditioned themselves for survival of Riff's instant "sand-bag" coffee. And the third-floor Carrollites fortified their olfactory appendages from the aroma of Lawler's midnight pizzas. But somewhere in the midst of mass hysteria, bulbs flashed, typewriters roared, and brains racked forth the fifty-first edition of the Regis RANGER. Most certainly, each yearbook staff dreams of a perfectly well-organized machine pounding out, page for page, a prize winning annual. But, alas; all ideals of unity seem to scatter to the winds during the long months, only to be swept back into motion by the hurrying, scurrying individuals killing themselves at deadline time.

This year proved no different in overwhelming response to the announcement, "We need caption writers." These words seem to trigger the interests of scores desiring that "sly" jab at some buddy of theirs who was unfortunate enough to be trapped by a "peeping Tom" photographer. And, after all, what better, more secretive way can be found than under the auspicious of an Activities Section caption writer. Of course, this editor was able to thwart any personally-aimed missiles, (sometimes it pays to know the right people!) I realize now, what a tremendous task was undertaken, and yet the swift passage of time seemed to humble this task into nothingness. The stillness of room 300 is deathly, almost oblivious of the life rushing on and on just outside its door. Soon the doors will be reopened, and the walls will feel the pressures of the new dynasty; destined, we hope, to the creation of an even finer Regis RANGER.

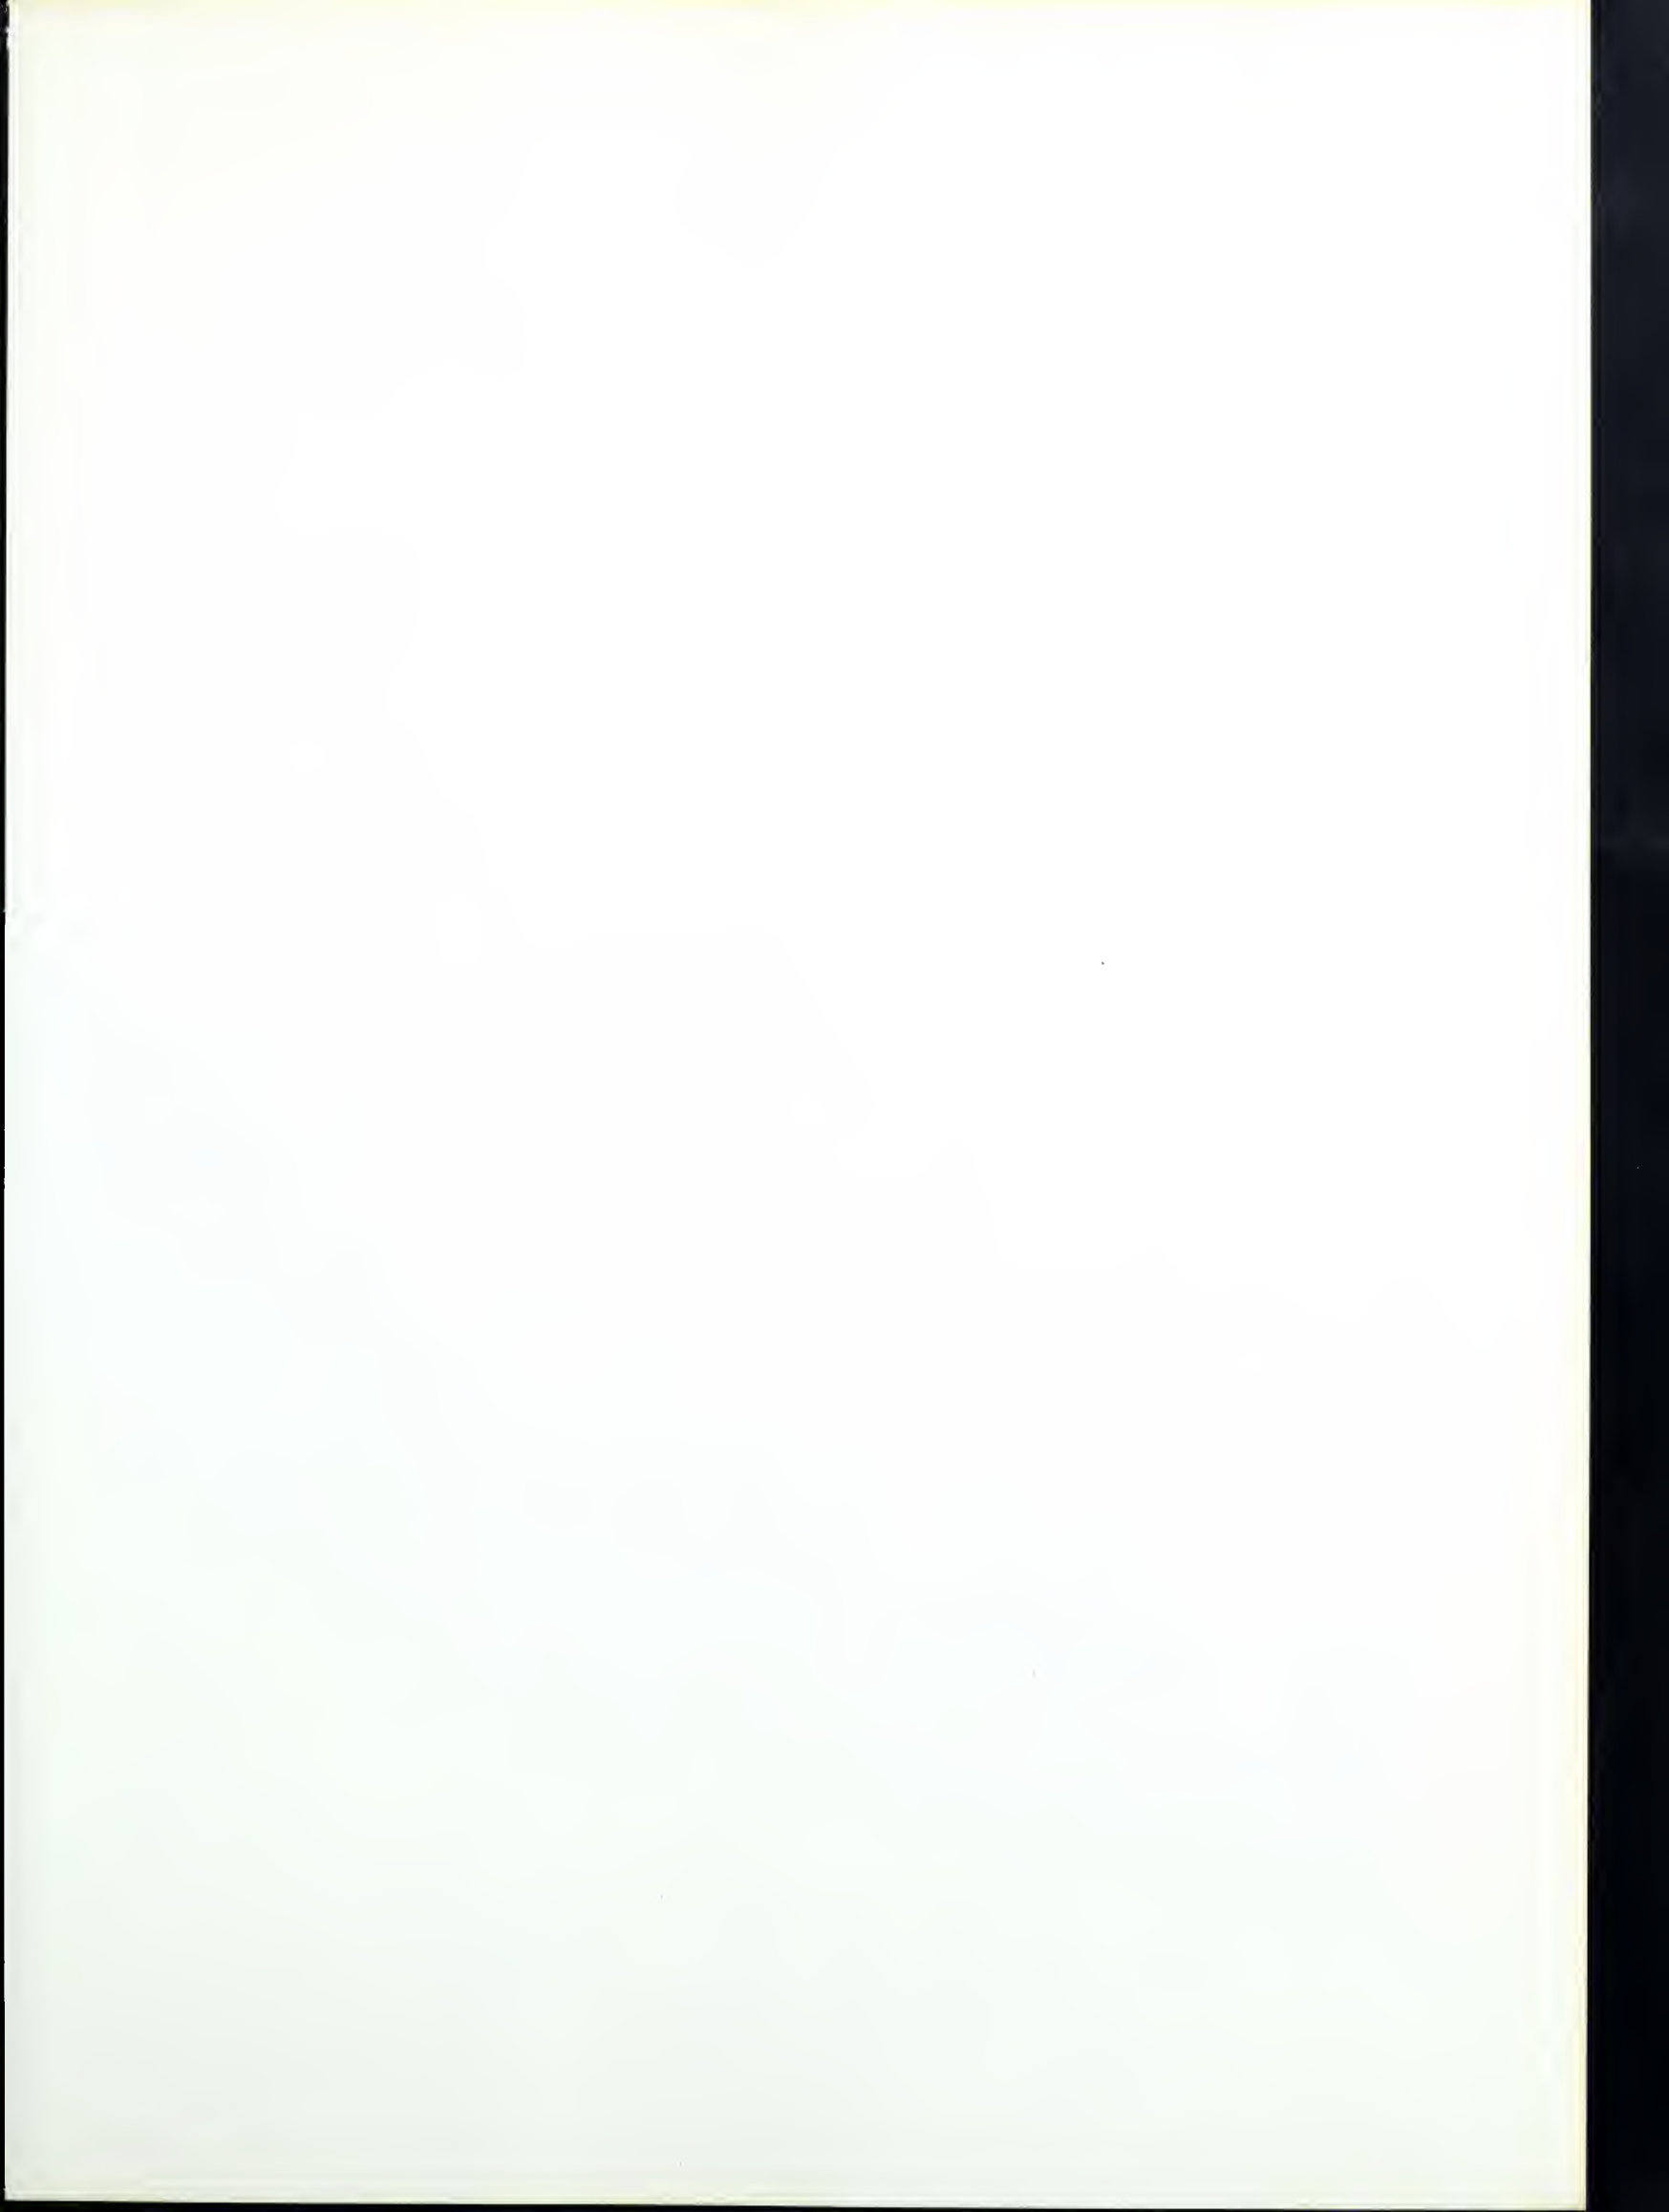

Shakespeare captured love forever in the sonnets he wrote, and perhaps in some such manner, my appreciation and gratitude to my staff and their assistants will likewise be captured. I offer my sincerest congratulations to all who have contributed to the completion of this RANGER; to the Section Editors Don Gessler, George Riff, Joe McNamara, Ed Coughlin, Jim Fisher, and Joe Lane; to Don Mildenerger our Business Manager; to our Photography Editor Burke MacDonald and his assistant Joe O'Dorisio (what would we do without them); to Jim Curtan our Copy Editor; to Dennis Lawler our Managing Editor; and to the special assistants Dean Stone, Chuck McElroy, and J. V. Doering. We were indeed fortunate this year to once again receive the services of Father Maginnis as Moderator, who guided us through many a crisis. There is little more that I can add to the above other than a simple "thanks" to you all. May God bless and keep you through all your years to come.
